The R-101 Lesson
A New Preparedness
15,050,000 Jews
Foolish, Weepy, Wall St.

By Arthur Brisbane

THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT declares a day of mourning for the loss of the R-101. With that news comes a cable from Berlin, telling of another air disaster, six passengers and two members of the crew burned to death in a Lufthansa plane, bound from Berlin to Vienna.

These losses are appalling, but they will not intimidate real men, or check aviation.

Even the young robin that flutters from the nest and is bruised does not give up flying.

The lesson of the R-101 disaster is plain enough.

It is folly to build gigantic flying bags of cloth, that will absorb, as that unfortunate ship did, more than 16,000 pounds of rain water when already heavily loaded.

It is preposterous to run such a ship into a storm, as was done in this case, when it might have run away from the storm.

Dirigibles should be made, as one was recently made by the United States Government, setting an admirable example, all metal clad.

Such a metal gasbag can be kept absolutely free from leaks, so that even hydrogen gas might be safely used. It is not exposed to danger from lightning, since it offers no resistance to the passage of electric current from sky to earth.

Admiral Moffett, saying that this country possesses unlimited supplies of non-explosive helium gas for dirigibles, deplores our law that forbids exportation of it. He urges us to let European nations have that helium gas; but that suggestion calls for careful decision.

If the gas were used to send here dirigibles loaded with T. N. T. we would better keep the helium gas to ourselves.

On the other hand, helium gas will be of no importance in a few years, when airplanes cross the ocean in six hours. We might gladly supply hostile European nations with gasbags, because, at least, you could hit those with anticraft guns. You will never be able to hit the swift-flying machines that will come.

Our only hope is in being able to say to other nations:

"Attack us, and we shall destroy you and all your cities. Come here and we'll prove to you that we can do it."

It is a pleasure to read in President Hoover's address to the American Legion:

"We must sustain a preparedness for defense that is impregnable, yet that contains no threat of aggression."

There is no threat of aggression in being prepared. The history of this country proves that it will not engage in the piracy of war unless forced to do so.

"We have always relied on our citizen army, and never relied in vain," says the President. That is true.

But before gunpowder and bullets came, all rulers of Europe relied on their armored nobles, and leather jacketed foot soldiers. They had to put aside the armor and build fortifications when bullets came.

We must now rely on flying machines and submarines. "A citizen army" couldn't do much against a flock of airplanes dropping TNT, or against submarines, destroying our commerce, invading our harbors.

There are, on earth, about 1,600,000,000 human beings. Of these, according to the American Jewish Year Book, 15,050,000 are Jews.

Three years ago, latest figures, there were 4,228,000 in the United States, 1,765,000 of them in New York city.

Three million live in Palestine, Arabia, Iraq and Syria. There are only 300,000 in Great Britain, 3686 in the Irish Free State, 4000 in Spain, more than 500,000 in America.

Foolish victims of race and religious prejudice should consider what the Jews have accomplished, and are accomplishing, in this world, in proportion to their number.

They are less than 1 per cent

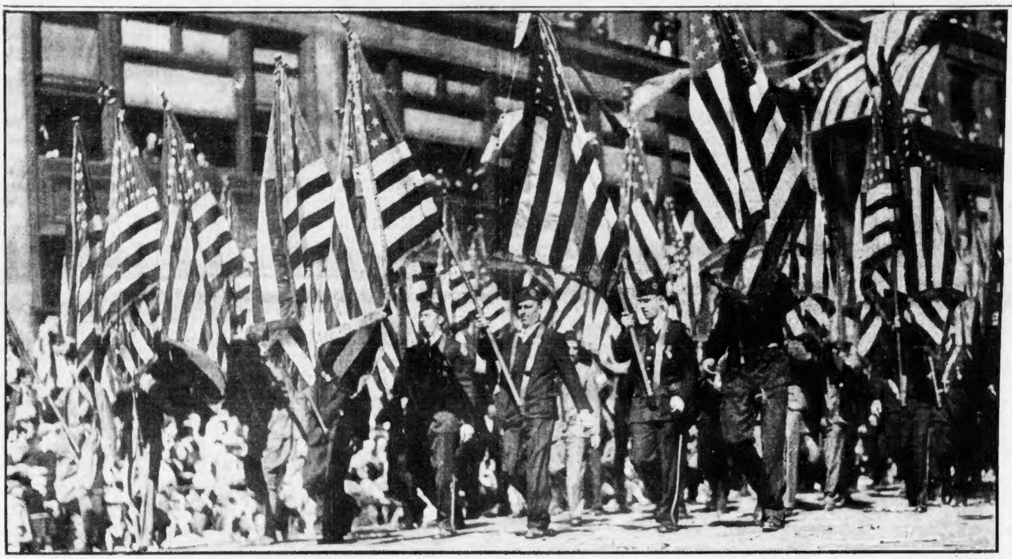
PARADE THRILLS MILLIONS

And the Greatest Thrill of All Came When the Flag They Fought for Marched By



THERE'S SOMETHING about that Starry Banner—in the gentle grace of its silken folds, the sweep of its flutter, in its colors, above all in those things for which is stands—that somehow gets into the hearts of the men and women who see it pass, that gives that smothering, chokey sort of thrill which nothing else quite gives. As the massed colors of the marching legions of the heroic warriors passed at High and Summer sts. today there was at first a hush and then a thunderous roar from the multitude. . . . And thus the Flag passed on. . . .

MARCHING LINE 28 MILES LONG

Legion parade pictures on Pages 2, 3, 4, 8.

The Legion marched again!

The legion of the nation's valiant, who marched through the flaming crucible of a world war 12 years ago, marched through Boston today in a breath-taking, soul-stirring spectacle of peacetime.

Along a five-mile route that looped the Back Bay and downtown Boston, 75,000 members of the American Legion and its auxiliary marched in a parade 28 miles long.

More than 2,000,000 men, women and children cheered them, thrilled to the purport of that march and its seemingly endless flow.

Greatest of All

The parade started shortly after 10. It continued through the morning and afternoon, toward the darkness.

It was Boston's greatest parade. It was the American Legion's greatest parade, climaxing its greatest convention.

It drew the largest and most enthusiastic throng in the city's history, surpassing the glittering pageantry of the past—the recent tercentenary turnout, the receptions to Byrd, the Bremen fliers, Admiral Dewey.

This was a demonstration of peace, yet of preparedness and of organization. This was a re-

Blind Man Thrilled by Monster Parade

By BERT FORD

Among the 2,000,000 spectators that gathered today to see the record-breaking American Legion parade one figure, that of a disabled soldier, stood out in bold relief.

Nobody in the vast concourse enjoyed the turnout any more than Frank Schoble, national vice-commander, and yet Frank is totally blind. A bursting shell in action robbed him of his sight.

But was Schoble downhearted? Not on your life. He "saw" it all in his mind's eye, aided by the descriptions of buddies who sat near and by the outbursts of enthusiasm and the crash of martial music.

Any of you glooms who think your lot is hard could learn a lesson in optimism from the Legion's vice commander.

Slim and pale, but with an expression that radiated happiness he sat in the Court of Honor, puffing a big cigar and every now and then poising it between the thumb and forefinger of his right hand as he tilted his ear the better to hear.

When his home gang from Pennsylvania swung past Frank was a kid again, instead of the staid business man he has come to be in the years since he recovered from his wounds and undaunted started to earn a living selling real estate. The shifting expressions on his cheerful countenance played like the glint of sun on slightly ruffled water.

Schobel is a philosopher. He is as keen as a razor's edge.

There is nothing like a parade for a close-up of human nature. The outstanding trait of the mass of humanity that stormed Boston today was the willingness to help the other fellow.

They wanted to see themselves, but as a whole they were not selfish. They made friends with those at their elbow and swapped refreshments.

It was tough standing pinned tight for hours, first on one foot and then on another for countless thousands but they had a good time of it.

Consideration was shown for women and children. That was the chivalry in crowds, and the other feature was good-nature.

U. S. Legion Shrapnel

Of the many one-man shows in the parade, the vet from Oklahoma attracted most attention with the "jackass orderly." His capers drew applause all along the line.

ESCAPED LIQUOR BOATS SEIZED

New London, Ct., Oct. 7—Coast Guard Destroyer headquarters here today announced a report from Brenton Reef Coast Guard station that two speed boats, which it is charged unloaded liquor at Newport Beach, Sept. 30, were seized by Coast Guardsmen at Fall River.

The seized craft are the Overland and the Alibi II.

Early Sept. 30, coast guardsmen broke up a liquor landing party at Newport Beach, seized 500 cases of assorted liquors, two motor trucks and two power dories, but the rum runners, 20 in number, escaped in the boats reported seized today.

RUDY VALLEE WINS CHEERS

The Croon Prince of Maine, Rudy Vallee, headed the Maine detachment. When he rounded the corner of Massachusetts ave. and Boylston st. a wild whoop went up from the curbstones from his fair rooters, and also from several male throats.

Rudy wore a Legion hat, one of his famous cheer-leader white sweaters, blue serge trousers, but was minus his crooning megaphone. If he crooned, no one heard him, because several lusty buglers paced not five feet behind him.

BRAZIL PRESIDENT CALLS ARMY RESERVES TO CRUSH REVOLT

REBEL ARMY DIVIDED FOR 2 MARCHES

One Branch Heads for Rio de Janeiro, the Other for Sao Paulo, Coffee Center

Rio de Janerio, Brazil, Oct. 7—The government, faced with a growing revolution south and north, today called out the first and second classes of army reserves.

All foodstuffs have been requisitioned in the capital city. Authorities alleged retail merchants were charging excessive prices owing to communications with the state of Minas Geraes being interrupted.

Federal forces are marching slowly toward Minas Geraes. Their progress delayed because many bridges and track have been destroyed along the central railway.

Martial law has been proclaimed for the entire nation. Reports so far indicate more than 200 on both sides have been killed in skirmishes.

The war minister announced that Gen. Lavane Wanderley, commander of the seventh military region, died of wounds received while fighting the revloutionists in the state of Pernambuco.

Dispatches from Montevideo, Uruguay, say the rebel leaders plan to divide the armies of the state of Rio Grande Do Sul, which is committed heart and soul to the revolution, and move one section against Sao Paulo, coffee-exporting center, and the other against Rio De Janeiro.

War Echoes Again Today

EDWARDS SCORNS BATON

Just before the parade started Lieut-Col. Carroll Swan dashed up to Gen. Edwards and handed him a baton. The general spurned it but on Swan's insistence accepted the baton with a grin, and then handed it to Col. William J. Keville.

LIVING MODEL SHOWS

Several of the big department store show windows along the line of march were turned into living model shows, packed solid with clerks who had tossed out the wax models and taken their place to better view the parade.

POLICE ARE CRUEL

These Fat Drum Majors—How Girls Fall for 'Em

Gobs, dough-boys, aviators, marines—Boston girls had plenty of chance to take their pick today. But if they were given a blindfold test—the palm would be given to the drum major, and the fat drum majors at that.

Boston girls liked them fat.

When the leader of the Miami, Fla., post, tastefully but artistically attired in a necklace of sausages, pranced by, he got a great big feminine hand.

When the Drum Major of the Blue Devils, from Springfield, Vt., strutted his fancy stuff with baton and quick-step, he got another big cheer.

When the Drum Major of the Royal West Mounteds from the Frankford, Pa., Post, who had still managed to preserve his doughboy figure, stepped by, the girls shouted until their throats were hoarse.

When the furred high-hats of the Iowa bugle drum-majors swept by the girls were in a frenzy.

As for the kids—the drum-majors were their idols of the day. They started rehearsing with sticks right on the spot.

Ask any Boston youngster tonight what he wants to be when he grows up—and the answer, ten chances to one, will be, "A Drum Major."

STEEL REVIVAL WILL KEEP UP WAGES

Chairman Girdler of Republic Corporation Says Trade Is Beginning to Improve

Washington, O., Oct. 7 (AP)—Confidence that there will be no wage slashing in the steel industry and that the trade is beginning to experience the first flutter of a complete revival was expressed today by Tom L. Girdler, chairman of Republic Steel Corp.

The most convincing evidence that the bottom had been reached, Girdler said, was in the attitude of customers.

"For the first time in many months," he said, "buyers are showing an increasing interest in making purchases for future delivery, indicating growing confidence in the underlying firmness of prices.

"The level of steel prices has fallen 12 per cent in the last year to the lowest point since 1915. The prices of many steel products have dropped to a point where many large consumers realize any further declines would serve no special purpose."

5 PICKPOCKETS HELD IN PARADE

Five men, known to police as pickpockets, were arrested in the Legion parade crowds by Inspectors James Claflin, Stephen Flaherty, and William Taylor.

The men were booked at headquarters as suspicious persons. They will be held 24 hours for possible identification by persons whose pockets have been picked, then placed on a train with a one-way ticket.

One hundred men from the Boston detective bureau and 72 extra police from various Massachusetts cities are on pickpocket duty during the week in charge of Deputy Supt. James McDevitt.

New Jersey Sign on Dry Vote and Corn Catches Crowd

One member of the New Jersey delegation drew considerable applause and also much laughter with a huge sign which he carried. The sign read:

"To the dry-voting corn States: New Jersey eats its corn and votes wet; you drink yours and vote dry."

There was plenty of good-natured chaffing between the crowd and the standard bearer all along the line.

The League should stop requesting peace and be satisfied with an armistice.

It has builded its Tower of Babble, speaking every tongue, including the pickled.

Ten years ago we wrote a line that has since been credited to many others. That line was that the United States had never lost a war nor won a peace conference.

But the League still continues to move from city to city thinking that a change of climate will atone for an absence of reason.

Like a man in a lunch wagon, the League diplomat is eating, but he ain't going anywhere.

FIREMEN DASH BY PARADE

Four fire companies broke through the parade lines at Berkeley and Isabella sts. today without mishap or interruption.

On an alarm from Box 1523, at Tremont and Church sts., Engines 3, 10, 22 and 26 skirted around Tremont to Berkeley to avoid a dash through the lines near the Statler. Police dropped the lines and the crowd swung back as though it had been rehearsed while the apparatus thundered through.

It came at a temporary halt in the parade. The blaze was in the basement of 24 Isabella st. and amounted to $100 in damage. The firemen left in a roundabout way that did not disturb the parade.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 7 (AP)—Peter L. Simonini, former chief bookkeeper of the National Bank of Commerce, charged with responsibility for a $246,000 shortage, was held under $25,000 bail today in U. S. District court.

CROMWELL IN FIGHT TO KEEP DAUGHTER

Hearing Tomorrow in Newport in Suit Against His Former Wife, Now Mrs. R. T. Baker

Providence, R. I., Oct. 7 (AP)—The legal battle over custody of Christine Cromwell, 8-year-old daughter of James H. R. Cromwell of New York and grandchild of Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, wife of a senior member of J. P. Morgan & Co., will be resumed in Superior Court at Newport tomorrow.

The mother, Mrs. Delphine Dodge Baker of Reno, Nev., who married Raymond T. Baker Dec. 4, 1928, after obtaining a divorce from Cromwell on Sept. 28, 1928, is trying to obtain custody of Christine, who is now with Mr. Cromwell's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. O. Eaton Cromwell, in Newport.

Under a written agreement of the parents in 1928, the mother was to have custody of Christine from Sept. 15 to June 15 each year and the father was to have her the rest of the year.

Mr. Cromwell recently notified his divorced wife that he would not return the child to her because of alleged neglect.

Income tax department decisions, undoubtedly, are just.

But, why not allow a doctor, or other professional man, wearing his life out at his profession, to deduct for "depletion," as his life and earning capacity grow shorter. The owner of a coal mine is allowed to deduct for depletion, because there is less coal left in his mine.

Or, why not allow the worker taxed on his income at least to deduct the amount paid to doctors to keep him working? A farmer can deduct what he pays a veterinary to look after a sick mule, but can't deduct what he pays a doctor to look after his broken leg.

MUELLER'S ELBOW MACARONI
MUELLER
*Look for the Red, White and Blue Package

You find them in every school—youngsters who "snap into things" fast. Smart at adding figures, learning dates in history.

And after school — watch them play! Always full of life and fun!

Your children have the right to be like that. Nourishment and digestion have more to do with it than anything else.

Made of Farina

Of all the quickly assimilated foods, not one is more nourishing than MUELLER'S MACARONI and SPAGHETTI. The farina content, that makes them so digestible, also gives them a special appeal to the appetite —aided by the exclusive Mueller processes.

MUELLER'S ELBOW MACARONI
A Favorite with Children

The "elbow variety" is especially popular with the young folks, because of its convenient shape. In any form, this better macaroni makes a delicious addition to a family meal, even with no other flavoring than ordinary pan-gravy.

If you want greater variety, there are many popular ways of serving — some elaborate, some as simple as the following:

ELBOW MACARONI
With Leftover Meat

1 package of MUELLER'S ELBOW MACARONI, ½ cup leftover meat, 2 cups gravy, ½ onion, chopped, 1 tbsp. melted butter, ½ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, 1 cup grated cheese, buttered bread crumbs. Parboil the elbow macaroni for 7 min. in 4 qts. boiling water with 1 tbsp. salt. Drain. Mix the meat, chopped, the gravy, butter and seasonings. Combine with the macaroni, and pour into a well greased baking dish. Cover with the crumbs and bake for 20 minutes.

Just try the above suggestions. Your grocer has MUELLER'S ELBOW MACARONI, or can get it for you.

minder of that lesson of the war and an expression of the everlasting comradeships and the singleness of purpose for the nation's welfare that were formed in war.

These were the men—and the women—who caught the Torch from falling hands.

"Be yours to hold it high . . ."

The Torch burned high today, above Boston, above the nation, throwing its light, its promise and its warning across two oceans.

Sun Shines Forth

It was cool and at first the skies were overcast. But the sun came out after the start and the skies cleared as they did over the battlefields one November past all forgetting.

It was weather to make the Legionnaires step out—and they did. The head of the parade reached the finish line in eight minutes less than two hours after the start.

Into the city long before marching time, New England poured its thousands for the pageant. It was a Greater Boston holiday, with schools and stores closed, business suspended, streets jammed with humanity along the route, all vehicles excluded from the downtown district, 2000 police and the Legion "M.P.'s" struggling with crowds throughout the day to keep the narrow lane of march cleared.

It was a gathering and a parade of the men who lead in war as well as the men who lead in peace. For riding at the head of the great outpouring of the veterans was Gen. John J. Pershing, who directed their destinies in France, and Gen. Henri Gouraud of Paris and the Argonne—and the single arm.

His Last Lead

There was General Clarence R. "Daddy" Edwards, General Hickie, the Irish leader; Colonel Brown, who heads the British Legion, riding with Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams. Governor Allen and the chief executives of eight other states. Commander O. L. Bodenhamer, riding for the last time as the head of the American Legion.

The city itself was in its grandest dress, decorated as never before in 300 years of history. Myriad flags strung across the streets whipped in the breeze, flags and bunting fluttered across the face of nearly every building along the route, in a profusion of patriotic color.

Overhead planes roared across the blue, and the dirigible Los Angeles from Lakehurst, N. J., headed up to circle the city.

Boston was a picture.

Bugle flare shortly after 10 o'clock. The throb of drums. The police escort of nine mounted officers under Sergt. Edward Cain swinging into Beacon st. from Massachusetts ave. The first line of the grand march.

PASSES UP HIS BATON

Grand Marshal Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, past national commander of the Legion. Then the honorary grand marshal, the grizzled, beloved old warrior, Gen. Edwards, who frowned on batons and hurled his own to a member of his staff, Col. William J. Keville.

Here was the man who led the 26th Division through the mud and drizzle of France when the leashes were slipped from the dogs of war.

Following—in advance of the military escort and the first of the bands—rode other familiar figures attached to the grand marshall's staff. William H. Griffin, commander, as chief of staff; Lieut.-Gen. Edward L. Logan as honorary chief of staff; Edward F. O'Dowd, assistant chief of staff; Adjt. George S. Penney.

The first group was given a tremendous ovation; every kind of noise maker joined in the din.

There followed one of the most pulse-quickening spectacles of the entire march, the massed colors of the nation, States and State departments, the silk alive in the breeze, rippling warm and glowing. Hats off!

Behind the flags rode the past national commanders with Commander Bodenhamer and a host of other distinguished guests in automobiles.

Then the Legionnaires from afar. From Alaska and Canada, from France and Hawaii. Legionnaires from Italy and Mexico and Panama, Porto Rico, the Philippines. Then Arizona, first of the 48 State delegations.

WARTIME MELODIES

Boston throbbed with the music of those 350 bands. It flowed over the heads of the crowd. It rose, echoing, from the downtown canyon walls. It hung on the air, over the city, like one sustained note. It was composed for the most part of those songs of the war that cling now in the memories of the men who went to war, associated with war's hardships and sorrows and its tight-drawn mask of grotesque humor.

"Hinky, Dinky Parley Vous!" "The Long, Long Trail" of poignant recollections. "Madelon," with its swing of the "Marseillaise."

"Over There"—ah, yes, over there! "My Buddy!" That song—that song, er—oh, yes, "The Stein Song." They played that, too.

The Legion marched! Up the two-mile length of Beacon st. passing reviewing stands along the Common and in front of the State House. Up the long hill past the State House with the terraced lawns once again opened to the crowd, the stairs, balcony and roof and every window thronged.

Down lower Beacon and School past the reviewing stand at City Hall with the crowd sidewalk deep and backing up into the intersecting thoroughfares, straining at ropes.

Young America sat on the curbstones.

GRAND ARMY MEN THERE

Down Washington st. to Dock sq., where 75,000 persons stood in close proximity to old Faneuil hall and watched the lines flow beneath the Tercentennial arch. Then up Congress and Federal sts., with the paper snowstorm at its height. Through crowded Summer st. and Winter st.—closed to all—and down Tremont st., past the reviewing stands and the Court of Honor, seating 25,000.

In those stands on Tremont st. there were Gold Star mothers who saw beyond the swinging lines that passed before them. In them, too, were grand old veterans of the Civil War.

Dark blue and gold, light blue and scarlet, white drill, gold trimmed, olive green and olive drab, white Sam Browns and tan Sam Browns, the uniforms of the Legionnaires flowed through the streets. Dark blue and gold, white, apple green and red, the skirts and the capes of the auxiliary groups flowed behind them.

AS IN DAYS OF WAR

The Legion marched! And one did not need a very vivid imagination to visualize the unforgotten hosts of the martyred dead swinging along there beside the Legionnaires, shoulder to shoulder with them on parade, shoulder to shoulder with them in the march through life.

One needed but to close his eyes to that steady tramp of feet that have not forgotten how to march and visualize those men a dozen years ago—moving up! Moving up through the blood and mud of the Argonne, of Chateau Thierry, of Belleau Wood.

Yes, the Legion marched! A spectacle never to be forgotten by those 2,000,000 who cheered it, thrilled to it, caught up in the emotion it inspired.

Along the line of march reviewing stands had sprung up almost overnight. Those along Beacon st. and Tremont st., at Columbus cir., and along Columbus ave., seated upwards of 100,000 people.

The heaviest crowd congestion over the entire route was along Beacon st. from Berkeley to Tremont and along Tremont from Winter to Boylston. Beacon st. from the starting point to Berkeley had plenty of room for spectators.

In the downtown district police had the worst crowd experience in the history of the department, with the worst section in the vicinity of Dock sq. and at Summer and Washington sts. At the latter point police reserves were rushed a half hour after the parade start to hold the crowd in check.

One continuous volume of cheering swelled up from the thronged streets and the din was tremendous as the favorites and the most spectacular of the delegations passed.

Grand Marshal McNutt and Gen. Edwards received the first of a great ovation. Flanked by Governor Allen and Mayor Curley, Commander Bodenhamer rode "Lindbergh fashion" on the tonneau of his open car as far as the reviewing stand, to receive another.

Side by side in the car rode Gen. Pershing, "Black Jack" of war fame, and Gen Gouraud. Gen. Pershing appeared tired. The gray beard of the French general bobbed like a salute.

The first band was the Drum and Bugle Corps of Frankfort Post, Philadelphia, national champions of all the Legion's musical groups. The men wore red coats, black velvet trousers, brown hats and Sam Browne belts.

MARINES AND SAILORS

From Portland, Me., the Fifth Infantry came to joint the military escort and behind them marched detachments of marines and sailors from the navy yard.

Then the First Corps of Cadets with their crack band and behind them the Wectric Post Band of Milwaukee in blue uniforms and gold-braided caps.

Grand Marshal McNutt carried a baton made of wood from the frigate Constitution. It was presented to him just before the start by Col. Carroll J. Swan, director of convention activities.

The parade was the realization of a year's planning and hard work on the part of Col. Swan and his 300 aides who marched behind the grand marshal's staff.

It wound, throughout the day, a multi-colored ribbon along the streets, its end end Commander McNutt, its other the Massachusetts state department.

There were in it some 200 floats, each with its own delegation. That accorded the greatest reception, probably, was the Racine, Wis., post float representing the Spirit of '76 and the Spirit of '17. Its figures, bronze painted, appeared not to move, yet were men and women.

Arizona, first state delegation, swung into the marching line just before 11 o'clock. After it came Wyoming, South Dakota, Florida, Nebraska and down through the 48 states of the Union, with Missouri and Maryland just preceding Massachusetts on the end.

Among the posts making the biggest hits with the crowd were Oneida, S. D., Jacksonville, Fla., and Tampa, Fla. Pasadena, Cal., Legionnaires wore orange jerseys and white trousers. The Los Angeles post had its big black bear.

Gilmore Post, Iowa, clad in the snappiest blue uniforms in the march, received a tremendous ovation. Vermont's posts from Burlington, Barre, Bellows Falls, and Rutland flanked a dilapidated "flivver" plastered with Legion wise cracks.

Waterloo, Ia., Legionnaires carried giant ears of corn and their band played little but jazz. Eighty women with the Knoxville, Ia., post won a big ovation.

Another beautiful spectacle was the massed flags of all New Hampshire legion posts behind 200 American flags. Three hundred "Continentals" in Revolutionary war uniforms followed.

From Oregon came the "Cave Men" in leopard skins.

HATFUL FOR THE MAYOR

There was a spirit of good humor among the marchers and the millions who cheered them. But the humor did not overlap the dignity. There were many humorous incidents.

For instance, the Florida delegation had a baby crocodile. Mayor Curley, at the Court of Honor, held out his hat in salute. The crocodile landed in the hat.

And the parade had its moments of seriousness as, for instance, when it swung past the reviewing stand where the Legion had provided seats and lunches for the Gold Star Mothers. It was "Eyes right!" past that stand, and tears dimmed many an eye.

Yes, the Legion marched.

At Auxiliary Breakfast

Mrs. John Gilmore, national chairman of the American Legion Auxiliary, was hostess to more than 50 women representing every state in the Union, at a breakfast at the Hotel Sheraton today. This breakfast marked the birth of a new division of the Auxiliary, to be known as the Radio and Publicity department.

Mrs. Donald Macrae, National Commander of the Auxiliary, and Walter Myers, were among the guests at the breakfast which was followed by a round table discussion.

Little Mary Curley Central Figure in Court of Honor

Slim little Mary Curley, who has become Boston's official hostess, was the target for admiring eyes in the Court of Honor today.

Dressed in a chic little black frock banded with ermine touches and wearing a smart little tricorne hat that breathed Paris all over it, with its white cockade, she helped keep little brother George Curley in his seat and answer his eager, thousand-and-one questions.

Notorious Gunman Found Dead in Auto

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—Herbert Irving Roberts, notorious gunman and racketeer who escaped in 1928 from the Virginia State penitentiary, was found dead early today on the seat of an abandoned automobile in a residential section of the Bronx. Police said he had been taken for a "ride."

20 Flee in Chelsea Mystery House Fire

Twenty persons were driven to the streets when flames of undetermined origin spread to the rear of four three-story wooden tenements at Spruce and Heard sts., Chelsea, yesterday.

Alarms were turned in twice at each of three fire boxes. Firemen checked the blaze with difficulty because of the wind which fanned the flames. Damage was estimated at $12,000.

NOW, HE ENJOYS FOODS THAT USED TO DISAGREE

"For over five years it seemed like everything I enjoyed eating would disagree with me," says Charles L. Garman, 5438 Irving St., Philadelphia. I suffered from headaches; was nervous; couldn't sleep right.

"I tried a lot of things for indigestion, but nothing really helped until my doctor started me on Pape's Diapepsin. I have used five packages and have gained five pounds. I eat anything—fried things, hot cakes; foods that used to disagree. I seldom feel the least discomfort nowadays, but when I do I just take a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and in a moment my stomach is all right."

When thousands like Mr. Garman are coming right out in public to praise Pape's Diapepsin, there seems no reason to doubt that it does what is claimed for it to help people who suffer from acid-dyspepsia, and the heartburn, gas, nausea, belching, headaches, dizziness, etc., caused by this common ailment. But those who wish further proof before buying may easily have it. The makers agree to send anyone a trial package absolutely FREE. Just write "Pape's Diapepsin," Wheeling, W. Va.

SOUND WIZARD TO MARRY

Hollywood, Oct. 7 (US)—Dr. Lee Deforest, distinguished developer of radio and of talking motion pictures, is soon to marry Marie Mosquini, pretty film comedienne.

Just when the wedding is to take place was not known today—even to Dr. Deforest himself.

"But I am happy to say that I am going to marry Miss Mosquini, just as soon as I am free to do so," the inventor said.

He explained he was not quite sure just when a divorce decree obtained by Mrs. Deforest—his second wife—would become final. Her suit was brought in a remote New York State county with the idea of avoiding publicity, he said, and he did not oppose it.

It had been reported in film circles that Dr. Deforest and Miss Mosquini had been wedded, recently and secretly, in Mexico, but this was denied by the sound-wizard.

Miss Mosquini was formerly leading woman in Hal Roach comedies, and worked with Will Rogers in a number of short features.

Furniture Saved; Later Lost in Fire

There smouldering sparks, which had lodged unnoticed in the furniture, set a fire which destroyed the garage.

ADAMS CHEERED FOR 'GREATER NAVY' PLEA

Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams drew resounding applause from more than 250 notables today when he made a plea for a mightier navy at a Chamber of Commerce breakfast, tendered in the Chamber building on Federal st. to National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer of the American Legion.

"And I say that it may be well for the United States to maintain a rather stronger, greater navy, that the voice of justice to ourselves and to the world may be assured," he said.

Secretary Adams also lauded the Legionnaires for what they had done for their country and the world.

Commander Bodenhamer, in his speech of thanks, told his audience that "the city of Boston has provided the best stage that a national Legion convention has ever had."

THRILLED BY ADAMS

Thrifty in his remarks about Navy policies since he assumed office, Secretary Adams thrilled his hearers with his declaration putting himself on record for the first time as for a greater United States Navy as a means of insuring peace and justice.

All in the hall rose to their feet and thundered their applause, and by it indorsed the words of the speaker. To the Legionnaires, Secretary Adams said:

"You proved you had more spirit, courage and endurance than is possessed by any professional military organization, and it is now up to you to still further demonstrate our power for justice by avoiding the rocks which lie in the charted course of our ship of state.

"One of these is the growing rift which is to be seen in the administration of national affairs. See to it that these rifts, these Congressional blocs, do not widen into factional political parties."

Mayor Curley also dwelt upon the importance and necessity of adequate national defense, and Governor Allen voiced words of greeting and appreciation to the Legion through Commander Bodenhamer.

WELCOMED BY HARRIMAN

Among those in attendance were National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer of the Legion, Gen. Henri Gourvard of France, Maj-Gen. Sir William Hickie of Ireland, Lieut.-Col. L. R. La Fleche, commander of the Canadian Legion, Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, Gen. John J. Pershing, Admiral William S. Benson, Governor Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire and Governor John E. Weeks of Vermont.

Others were Mayor Curley, Gov. Allen, Maj-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards; Col. John Brown, president of the British Legion; James E. Jewell, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R.; E. S. Ingram, chief of the Society of 40 and 8; Gov. William G. Gardiner of Maine, Col. Fred W. Abbott, Col. Hugh W. Ogden, Commander Richard F. Paul of the Massachusetts Department of the Legion.

Blind Chaplain Out for Legion Office

Miss Matilda Allison, blind chaplain of the Napa Unit of the California Auxiliary, is being advanced for national chaplain of the American Legion Auxiliary.

She lost sight of both eyes when she was seven years old, the result of an accident. She learned to read through the Braille system, and then mastered basket making and kindred arts.

After the war she joined the auxiliary as her brother was a veteran. She has devoted her life ever since to teaching the 200 blind soldiers in the veterans' hospital and in the State hospital at Napa. Her constant companion is Betty, a large police dog that she has trained to lead her about the streets.

Youngest Parader Is Dorchester Boy 6 Years Old

The youngest parader today was Harry Richards, Jr., son of Harry Richards of the Francis Kane Post, 60, of Dorchester, who celebrated his sixth birthday today.

He marched behind Sheriff Dan Dowd of Woodstock, Vt., mounted on his old gray mare on which he made the trip to Boston. Sheriff Dowd buried Francis Kane in France in 1918 and was given the place of honor at the head of the post.

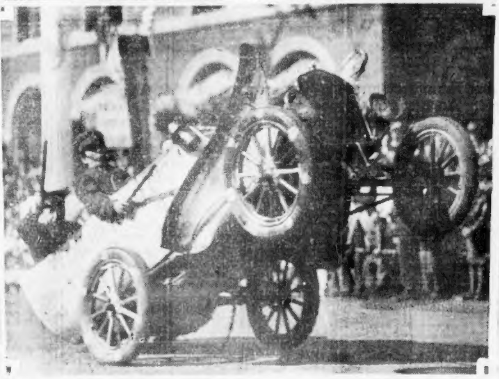
Trick Stunts From Far and Near Seen in the Legion Parade



THERE WAS A BUNCH of fun put into this great Legion parade of today. The Legion folk from Newport, N. H., brought along this trick automobile. What a laugh they got from men and women of all walks of life. (Staff photo.)

HERE COMES THE 5:15. Let's go boys, we've got to make that stand on time. Never can be late. The engineer, the firemen, oh, everybody on the crew hail from Waterloo, Iowa. That Legion crowd were given a "Great Big Hand" by the crowd. (Staff photo.)

Legion Welfare Program Calls for Women Leaders

Women can bring to the American Legion child welfare and rehabilitation program the sort of leadership and understanding hearts that it must have to make its vast job effective.

This leadership was called for by Dr. Kenneth Dorman of Cincinnati, national vice-chairman of the Legion child welfare and rehabilitation committee at a breakfast meeting of these joint committees of the auxiliary held at the Hotel Kenmore today.

"This is a lifetime job for both the men and women, and one that calls for the earnest co-operation of the auxiliary," Dr. Dorman said.

State and national chairmen of the child welfare and rehabilitation committees joined in a conference at a breakfast presided over by Mrs. Boyce Ficklen, Jr., national chairman of rehabilitation, and Mrs. Robert L. Hoyal, national chairman of child welfare for the auxiliary.

The keynote was co-operation between the Legion and its auxiliary in a program stretching over several years.

Watson Miller, national Legion rehabilitation chairman, paid tribute to the auxiliary for its work in hospitals while his staff was wrestling with the legislative end of the rehabilitation work for disabled veterans.

Statistics given at the meeting show that 70 per cent of the disabled veterans are dying, leaving children to be educated and cared for, and that 42 children are born daily to the wives of wounded veterans.

"A home for every veteran's child is better than any institution," Father George O'Conor of Dedham, national vice-chairman of child welfare and rehabilitation, told the gathering.

The California Auxiliary, with 20,000 members, won the national citation for rehabilitation work this year, having spent $55,000 for its disabled men during the past year.

YOUNGMAN HAS THREE ROLES

Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman was probably the most versatile participant in the parade today.

He saw the parade as a spectator, reviewed it with Governor Allen, then changed into uniform to march as a private with Brookline Post No. 11.

An embarrassing situation arose as he sat in the stands at the State House in formal dress. Visiting bands and other contingents thought him the governor and accorded him the courtesies for that office.

An elaborate flourish was staged for his benefit by the California band and when others followed suit, the Lieut.-Governor left the stand out of deference to Governor Allen.

The latter was in the parade and had passed the State House long before.

Lieut.-Gov. Youngman explained as he left that he didn't feel it right to receive the honors meant for his chief.

He left the State House for the Court of Honor for the official review of the parade and left in time to change into uniform and join his post at Newbury and Hereford sts.

MAN RESCUED IN LEGION TRAIN

A passenger on the American Legion convention excursion train from New Bedford to Boston today was saved from death by a conductor when the train parted between the second and third cars near Canton station.

Alfred Allard of 343 Shaw st., New Bedford, was about to step from the second to the one behind it when the cars separated, due to a broken coupling knuckle. Conductor Sylvester O. Cheney of Boston, who was right behind Allard, seized him and saved him from falling.

The accident caused excitement aboard the special, which had left New Bedford at 8 a. m. with 13 carloads of Legionnaires and persons bound to see the parade. A cloud of steam enveloped those riding in the rear of the second coach.

Temporary repairs were made and the train arrived at the South Station 20 minutes late.

City Pays 49 Cents for Red Lanterns Legion 'Loses'

Old Dame Boston is opening her pockets to the tune of 49 cents apiece for the red lights that waggish and merry Legion lads have been carrying around to lighten and brighten their way in Boston-town.

The red lanterns are owned by the Boston Elevated, but Boston has promised to make good for them, proving that the Old Lady is a generous hostess.

VOTE "YES" FOR THE repeal of the Baby Volstead Law, is what the sign on this goat-pulled cart told about. The Legion boys had a great time with this little offering.

Down the Line as the Old Bugle Blows

A PLACE TO SIT

Boxes, barrels, pails, anything that would elevate the small boy, made early appearances. One group with an oversupply proved their potentialities as merchants in sales along the route.

LIKE YD DAY.

"Remember when the YD came home? The query at a thousand places along the line gives a good idea of the general feeling of the watchers.

ALMOST MOVING DAY

Whole families predominated in the various grand stands. With Pa, Ma and the kids, the family bus was left home and the El saw many groups with thermos bottles, lunches and blankets, inward bound.

GOLD STARS FAVORED

Friends of Gov. Allen were seated in the westerly stands with Gold Star mothers and many disabled veterans. Members of the House and Senate and their families occupied the east stand and the grass plots between were crowded two hours before the start.

PAPER BLANKETS FELT GOOD.

Pretty girls were making leggings out of newspaper and muffs out of "extras" today, so sharp and keen was the air along the grandstands. The crowds laughed and cheered them on, kidding them about being grandstand "dressmakers."

JUDGES, BUT NOT JUDGING.

The judicial grandstand was the center one of three at the State House, with Supreme Court, superior court and municipal court judges the guests of Governor Allen. The Governor's Council, a congressional delegation and prominent business men sat with them.

AND STILL THEY COME.

At 10 o'clock, according to Elevated officials, crowds were pouring out of the Park st. subway exits at the rate of 100 a minute. Police said at 9:45 that 35,000 persons were jammed into Tremont st., between Park st. church and Boylston st.

LEARY ON INSPECTION

City Messenger Ned Leary who supervised the roping of streets, made a last tour of inspection at 9:30 and reported conditions satisfactory.

DISABLED VIEW PARADE

Disabled veterans from the Chelsea Naval Hospital, Bedford, Northampton and Rutland were seated in the Tremont st. stands under the care of a committee headed by Joseph J. Hurley, chairman of the Boston School Committee.

THEY GOT A HAND

Those Connecticut uniforms of white breeches, light blue coats and white Sam Browne belts certainly got a hand. One of the spectacular outfits in many was the Connecticut State Department Band in its white drill suits and silver overseas helmets.

OH, HE'S A BEAR

California's bear mascot nearly earned himself a ride instead of shuffling the long route. His 600 pounds was judged a little too much but his keepers insisted that the bear do his stuff for Boston.

GETTING A SQUINT.

Point of vantage 40 and 50 yards in side streets were crowded with watchers. One fire escape in Otis st. held more than a dozen persons seated on chairs, boxes and barrels.

KEPT THEIR $3 AND $5

The "pay-as-you-enter" grandstands didn't fare so well. Crowds packed the sidewalks at the buildings but kept the $3 and $5 asked to spend for something else.

CAPT. DRISCOLL BACK.

Many a conquering hero came home today—and they weren't all Legionnaires. Capt. John Driscoll of Mattapan station, formerly of the South End, came back to take charge in that district today, and was given a rousing cheer by a crowd of young South Enders. The captain promised to take care of 'em all. A large order for almost a hundred-or-so small boys.

Legion Head Is Honored by Chamber of Commerce

GEN. PERSHING GOV. ALLEN HENRY I. HARRIMAN O. L. BODENHAMER SEC. ADAMS ADMIRAL BENSON

COL. O. L. BODENHAMER, national commander of the American Legion, was the guest of honor at a breakfast given by the Chamber of Commerce, presided over by Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber, at which those at the head table included national officers of the Legion, department commanders and distinguished visitors to the Legion convention. Sidelights on Parade with bands working out the kinks.

CROWLEY ON PARADE

Superintendent of Police Crowley was the "Paul Revere" of the parade an hour before it started. He went over the route and satisfied himself that his men were ready for the big task of handling the crowd.

WHAT POLICE SAW

"No strong arm methods," was the general order to police, every officer face the crowd and not the parade.

WHAT, NO SPECTATORS?

The paraders had a 150-yard stretch without an audience. Narrow Winter st., for the first time since President Wilson's visit in 1919, was closed to both pedestrians and vehicular traffic.

TREE SITTERS NUMEROUS

The Common looked like the first convention of tree sitters on the Beacon st. side. Men and boys "shinned" up and even silk hosiery was ruined by a few of the weaker sex to glimpse the parade.

CIRCUS IS A HIT

The kids had their innings when Arizona and its "traveling circus" went by. Gayly decorted circus cages in miniature held raccoon and other small animals. They were led by the trained burro, whose antics brought roars from young throats.

William M. Butler, Republican nominee for U. S. Senator, sat in the center stand at the State House with judges of the Supreme Court.

PRETTY SOFT FOR THEM.

The size of the parade allowed some of the marchers to look on, go to lunch, and still have plenty of time to fall in at their places.

NOT SO HOT.

Cold curbings held no fears for a group of 14 youngsters in Park st. They sat there two hours before the start, the boys manfully salvaging newspapers for the two girls in the group to sit on. None were even born when the marchers fought.

THE BUSIEST PLACE

The First Corps Cadets armory was a local pont, as it is the headquarters of the many committees of the convention.

WHY PARADE WAS LATE

One of the most important sections of the parade reversed the route for the short distance. The dignitaries included Governor Allen, Gen. Pershing and Gen. Gouraud, did not leave the Chamber of Commerce breakfast until shortly before 10 o'clock. And that, Walter, was why the start of the parade was delayed.

EVERYBODY KNEW HER

There was one woman in the parade that nearly everybody knew. She was Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers, who attended the C. C. breakfast, rode with the dignitaries and reviewed the march from the Court of Honor.

BIG AMERICAN LEGION SOCIAL EVENT TONIGHT

Two important breakfast meetings opened today's auxiliary convention activities. The annual rehabilitation and child welfare breakfast was held at the Kenmore at 8 o'clock with Mrs. Boyce Ficklen, Jr., and Mrs. Robert L. Hoyal co-chairmen.

At the same hour the radio and publicity breakfast was held at the Sheraton with Mrs. John G. Gilmore of Nashville, Tenn., national radio chairman in charge.

The outstanding social event of the entire convention occurs this evening at Symphony Hall when the annual states dinner will be held with Mrs. Donald MacRae, national president, presiding.

The 1140 guests will be seated at tables by states, each table being decorated to represent some product, history or industry characteristic of that state, all competing for special prizes given for the best decorated table. During the dinner one minute toasts will be given by each of the 51 department presidents. The feature will be the processional of one couple from each stte in the costume of the year in which their state was admitted to the Union.

A galaxy of the distinguished guests of both conventions will lend brilliance to the event. They will include:

Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Fred W. Abbott of Great Britain; Signor Gicinni Baccarini, of Italy; Admiral Benson, Commander Bodenhamer, Mme. Bremard of France; Col. John Brown of the British Legion; Lady Edward Spencer Churchill, of London; Mayor Curley and Miss Curley, Mme. Le Davillac of Paris, Maj.-Gen. Sir William Hickie of Ireland, Gen. Gouraud of France, Gen. Frank T. Hines, Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart, Patrick J. Hurley, Mme. Masaraki of Poland and Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers, Hanford MacNider of Canada, Surg.-Gen. and Mrs. C. E. Riggs, Dr. Virgil Serdaru of Rumania, and Lt.-Col. Vasconcellos of Portugal.

Police Badge No. 1438 Lost, Says an SOS Signed "Finis"

Even the police teletype went military today.

The first message sent by Operator Harold McRury, himself a veteran, read:

"Lost—Somewhere in Boston. A Boston police hat badge, No. 1438. "FINIS."

Visiting Legionnaires recall the crypt messages from "Somewhere in France" that invariably ended with the terse "Finis."

Premiere Is Like Opera Opening

Society Dons Its Latest Styles for Premiere of Players at the Plymouth

THE PREMIERE OF THE Professional Players in "Death Takes a Holiday," by Alberto Casello, was a social as well as an artistic triumph. Because of the holiday atmosphere in which all of Boston is plunged at the moment, the affair took on the appearance of a first night at the opera, beautiful women gorgeously gowned, men in tail coats looking as though they liked it, friendly chatting between the acts in the foyer, box parties exchanging greetings and everyone enjoying the play.

CONGRATULATIONS ARE due Miss Rebekah Hobbs, managing director, for putting it over with a bang, which it is hoped will be sustained throughout the entire series of six plays. The first act started late but every seat was taken when the curtain rose at 8:45 it being delayed to await tardy subscribers who were delayed by the throngs in the streets. Among the early arrivals we saw Mrs. Fitzwilliam Sargent, in one of the black bead gowns so chic at the moment and orchids, a most stunning effect; Mrs. Sargent has charge of the Professional Players of Philadelphia, a most successful organization.

MISS EDITH PARKER OF Vincent Club fame was effervescent in black lace, a delightful person. Rosamond Rust, who has recently returned from Paris was very smart indeed in black ensemble with huge white fox collar on her black evening wrap. In striking contrast was Gabriella Ladd in white ermine wrap from which peeped a bit of purple lace evening gown — easily noticeable even in a large crowd Mrs. DeMenocal (Natalie Winslow) wore black which suited her blonde coloring and her enormous earrings were most effective. A Bostonian who has lived much abroad was beautiful Mrs. Eates Batchelder even more lovely than we have ever seen her in ivory satin, en train, with scarf of ivory Spanish lace.

MRS. JOHN PHILLIPS WAS enhanced by rose-beige lace—some women should always wear lace, it suits their delicate type: of Junoesque beauty is Mrs. Merrill Griswold who looked like a Greek column in draped ivory satin. Mrs. Malcolm French, able president of the Cushman Club, was gracious and queenly as always in black and diamonds. It was a very dressy party and crowds of people stayed for the reception on the stage after the performance for the actors. Mr. Philip Merivale was friendly which is saying a good deal after playing a difficult part so splendidly.

Hunnewells Plan at Home Oct. 25 for Daughter, Caroline

MR. AND MRS. Dancing will be enjoyed. Miss Hunnewell is cousin to Capt. Ben Ticknor of Harvard Varsity football fame. A dance will also be given for her at the Country Club on November 7.

MRS. ALBERT J. BEVERIDGE and Miss Abby Beveridge are giving a dinner and dance at their home in Beverly Farms in honor of Miss Alice Griswold, on Wednesday, October 8.

Society Leaders in Latest Fashions at Allen's Luncheon

THE GOVERNOR'S LUNCHEON, in honor of President Hoover, was a brilliant affair. The hall was draped in bunting and flags and the many uniforms worn by the guests brightened up the scene. There were flowers in profusion and the women wore their new fall costumes, which made it appear a proper fashion show. Mrs. Hoover was present, simply stylish in burgundy suit and fox fur. Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, living up to a tradition of being one of the best dressed women to live in the White House, was in beige chiffon and dark brown hat, wearing a large cluster of gardenias.

MRS. WILLIAM SCHOFIELD, in black and white in stunning combination, was present, seeing that her guests, Lady Edward Spencer Churchill, Mme. Mosaraki of Poland, president of the Fidac Auxiliary, in biege chiffon with turban to match, and Mmes. LeDivellac and Mme. Bremard of France, were properly cared for. No public function being complete without charming Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, she being observed appearing as pretty as ever in black ensemble. Mrs. Frederick Winthrop, another notable Bostonian, was smartly dressed in tailleur of grey blue. There were many dark blue ensembles, no one more becoming than Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, one of the committee.

MRS. CURTIS GUILD, UPON whose charming shoulders fall many civic duties, will give a luncheon on Thursday at her home on Marlborough st., to the distinguished visiting guests. She is on the entertainment committee.

MRS. J. MACEY WILLETTS of New York, with her two debutante daughters, will attend the Boston Horse Show as guests of Mrs. George Saltonstall West of Chestnut Hill. They will be house guests of the Saltonstalls for a few days.

Women's City Club Sponsor Luncheon

Senatorial Candidates to Be Guests of Organization on October 16

By NANCY BREWSTER

In new clothes, the bulletin of the Women's City Club makes its debut today. In modernistic white and black, the new bulletin from the pen of Miss Laetetia Bolton, editor, is a great improvement on the old one.

Easy on the eyes, and still easier on the minds, it shelters a table of contents on its front page, an innovation of this year.

The first event on the calendar of the Women's City Club is the appearance of Ellenor Cook at the Fine Arts Theater, October 15, at 7:45 p. m. Miss Cook will interpret "The Pageantry of Folk Lore" at her performance.

On October 16 the club will sponsor a campaign luncheon with William M. Butler and Marcus A. Coolidge, senatorial candidates, the guests of the day. The public affairs committee of the club are to present this program, affording the membership an opportunity for more intimate contact with the candidates than is possible at an ordinary political meeting.

Major issues of concern to the voters in the coming elections will be discussed and outstanding matters of public interest reviewed. A question period is to follow the luncheon address.

In the gay garb of cobalt and black the manual of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs reached this club department.

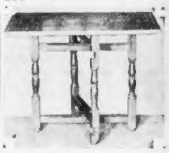
Clubwomen Issue Bulletin in New Form; Plan Folk Lore Performance

"Part 1 contains the moving story of the activities of those who bear responsibilities in the State organization. Part 2 presents in microcosm the hopes and plans of each club and organization for the present club year. Significant for future service and power is the roster of junior membership clubs that, for the first time, takes its worthy place in Part 2."

The manual reveals that the State Federation has a membership throughout the State of 382 clubs, with 65,580 members; four city organizations, with 47,474 members; six affiliated organizations, with 24,710 members, representing a total membership of 137,224.

DAILY ANTIQUE

No. 216



Another example of collapsible furniture used by our early ancestors is this "tuck-away table" of walnut and pine. When not in use the gate leg could be swung back and the leaf lowered, thus allowing more space in the room. The walnut top is reinforced by cross sections of the same material, joined at right angles by means of wooden pegs. The turned legs are also joined by wooden pegs.

Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of antiques of Colonial or early American origin or of historic asociations are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, providing the owner lives in Greater Boston. HOOD'S Grade A Milk is the highly specialized product of New England's greatest milk organization

THE bottle of milk that comes to you today with the Hood Grade A Seal, is the culmination of 84 years of experience in one undivided field—milk production and distribution.

It is the result of 84 years of persistent striving for higher quality. It represents enormous expenditures in cash premiums, in veterinary supervision, in expert inspection, in scientific laboratory research and checking.

It involved the smoothing out of an endless amount of detail. The arranging and adjusting of many complex factors. The education of producers to a full understanding of our conception of HOOD QUALITY. Added to this came the tuberculin testing of over eleven thousand cows and the selection of those that could qualify for this unusual milk.

Only an organization such as Hood's could have accomplished this tremendous task.

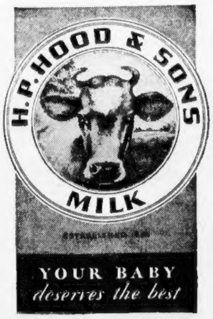
It required an army of experts and specialists to master and control the various selective and protective measures needed to create and maintain the standard set for Hood's Grade A Milk.

Here is a really fine product. Rich in all the things needed to build fine bodies in babies and children and keep grown-ups in glowing health.

Begin using Hood's Grade A today. Say Grade A to the Hood salesman.

Your baby deserves the best—see that he gets it.

"Hey, where's my Hood's Grade A Milk?"



RICH MILK—Better than legal requirements for Grade A Milk. Rich all through.

CLEAN MILK—From clean cows, produced under rigid supervision. Hood's standards three times as strict as State laws.

TESTED COWS—From cows tuberculin tested under State and Federal supervision, and then especially selected by our own inspectors.

30,000 HONOR DEAD IN R-101 DISASTER

Beauvais, France, Oct. 7 (AP)—Thirty thousand persons, from Beauvais and the nearby countryside, lined the streets of this little city today as a procession of caissons bearing the 47 bodies of victims of the R-101 disaster were taken from City Hall to the railroad station.

The bodies were placed on a special train bound for Boulogne-Surmer, where they will be put on board the destroyers Tempest and Tribune for the trip across the channel to England, where they will find an eternal resting place in a single grave.

Thirty French airplanes and a squadron of British planes hovered low over the procession as it wended its way to the railway station. Troops lined both sides of the streets through which the cortege passed.

Each casket was covered with a British and French flag and bouquets of flowers, most of them wild flowers picked by the peasants of the Beauvais area.

As the coffins were taken from the city hall and placed on the caissons, Premier Tardieu of France and Wedgwood Benn, secretary of state for India in the British cabinet, stood with uncovered heads.

Few British Airship Experts Left Alive

London, Oct. 7 (AP)—Further experiments with the R-100 probably will be held up for some time in consequence of destruction of the R-101.

Parliament already has voted an appropriation of £342,000 for airship development this year. The sum was intended to embrace experiments with both big ships, including the Indian trips, but it was not expected today that much would be done in the near future beyond maintenance of the airship stations at Cardington and elsewhere.

Official inquiry into causes of the R-101 disaster may be prolonged and it is believed that the R-100 probably will not fly again until they are concluded.

Aside from this, the airship force has been dealt a severe blow by loss of the experts who perished at Beauvais, and there are now, it is stated, barely enough trained men left at Cardington to form another crew, and training fresh men needs time.

Ford Sees Tariff as Blow to Trade

London, Oct. 7 (US)—I am against all tariffs and would abolish the American tariff. They bring benefit to a few, but they restrict trade."

So declared Henry Ford last night. He is now in England after a tour of the continent. Mr. Ford said that he still favors prohibition and intends enforcing abstinence at his British motor works at Dagenham, Essex.

Freshmen at Simmons Loaded Down With Tough Rules

The freshman situation at Simmons became more difficult today when rules were promulgated by the senior committee.

According to the rules, freshmen must part their hair in the middle, drawn straight behind both ears and tied at the neck with a green ribbon.

No jewelry may be worn, nor cosmetics used, but a bath towel, bearing the name of the wearer in green letters, must be worn on the back.

Every senior must be bowed to and freshmen must wear heavy workmen's gloves and low-heeled shoes.

TRIO SEIZED IN SILVER HOLDUP

Warwick, R. I., Oct. 7—More than $8000 in silver bullion, stolen in transit yesterday, was recovered by police today at a Shawomet Beach cottage.

Three men were taken into custody. They gave the names of Mario Ferraioli, Anthony L. Peters and Joseph Rodriquez, all of Providence.

The silver was part of a shipment to Handy & Harmon Co. of Providence. At South Killingly, Ct., the truck was held up and three men bound and gagged the truck driver.

The trio arrested waived extradition and were started back to Conecticut.

$10,000 Reward in Cantor Gem Theft

New York, Oct. 7—A reward of $10,000 is offered by the Insurance Company of North America, of Philadelphia, for information resulting in the conviction of the thieves and recovery of the jewels stolen from Mrs. Eddie Cantor, wife of the stage and motion picture comedian.

The theft occurred in the Ambassador Hotel, Atlantic City on August 30.

Weather Again Balks Boyd's Atlantic Hop

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—Bad flying weather over the North Atlantic probably will make it inadvisable for Capt. Errol Boyd to take off today from Harbor Grace, N. F., for a flight to England in the monoplane Columbia. Dr. James H. Kimball, United States weather bureau meterorologist, said.

Wadsworth Ends Hurricane Zone Tour

Santo Domingo, Oct. 7 (AP)—Eliot Wadsworth of Boston, special representative of President Hoover for hurricane relief, has concluded a tour of devastated regions in eastern and northern sections of the country.

It is believed his report will contain recommendations for a loan to improve economic conditions.

Needle Bares Radium

Newark, N. J., Oct. 7—The needle of an electroscope dipped over an ash barrel in the basement of Beth Israel Hospital located $3000 worth of radium that had been lost from a container.

Cooking School Note

In the cooking school conducted under the auspices of the American last week Mrs. Lilla Pauline Cross stresses modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, she uses and recommends CRISCO, the modern shortening.

Where Mark Twain breakfasted at 3 P. M.!

WHEN Mark Twain, the American humorist, lived in New York, he used to wander out of his house on Ninth Street and Fifth Avenue at mid-afternoon for his BREAKFAST. This he ate in a certain French hotel nearby which is even now a gathering place for epicures.

Its dining room, still becurtained in Nottingham lace, has looked out over the avenue for more than 80 years. Not long ago I, too, had breakfast there—but not at 3 in the afternoon! And, my dear good reader, if the immortal Mark Twain had ever eaten such pineapple fritters and bacon, I don't believe he would ever have waited so long for them. Those slivers of pineapple simply swooned in a delicate batter fried to a honey-brown crunchiness.

I've found the recipe for you. You can deep-fry them in the French fashion, in your own apartment for Sunday morning breakfast, if you like. Crisco is so fresh-tasting and non-smoking that no frying odors ever linger around to offend early afternoon guests. They can be used, too, as an accompaniment for other meat courses for other meals, or as a dessert by themselves.

Other fruit than pineapple can be substituted in the batter I'm giving you but I wouldn't risk substituting another fat. For Crisco is the only fat I know of that allows the real flavor of any food cooked with it, or in it, to assert its individuality. If you taste Crisco, yourself, just as it comes from the can, you can readily see how a fat so fresh flavored will preserve the delicacy of your most subtle foods. WINIFRED S. CARTER

PINEAPPLE FRITTERS

1 cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1¼ cups canned pineapple cut in slivers
½ cup pineapple juice
1 tablespoon melted Crisco
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg (beaten)
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Add pineapple juice, lemon juice, well-beaten egg and Crisco. Mix well. Then stir in pineapple. Drop by tablespoonfuls into deep hot Crisco (360° to 375° F. or when inch cube of bread browns in 60 seconds). Fry to golden brown (about 2 minutes). Drain on unglazed paper. Dust with powdered sugar to serve as dessert. Serve plain with meat.

SUNDAY SUPPER CREAMED EGGS

6 hard cooked eggs
6 slices of toast

Save out 2 egg yolks. Slice remainder of eggs thin and add gently to this cream sauce (mix well 2 tablespoons Crisco with 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped onion. Then add gradually 2 cups hot milk and stir over a slow fire. Cook till thick. Then add 1 tablespoon chopped parsley). Arrange toast on hot platter. Pour creamed eggs over toast. Press 2 egg yolks through a sieve and sprinkle over top for a garnish.

ALL MEASUREMENTS LEVEL. Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co. ©1930, P. & G. Co.

Taste Crisco—then any other shortening. Crisco's sweet, fresh flavor will tell you why things made with Crisco taste so much better.

In its new airtight can—as fresh and sweet as the day it was made hips and diaphragm is not a long-drawn-out affair of diet and violent exercise! Not if you wear one of the W. H. Phelps foundation garments. They're different (not rubber) but just HOW they're different, you have to see for yourself by trying them on. The moment you get into one, your measurements shrink by inches. There are models for any sort of figure—large hips, diaphragm, abdomen—any one or all three. The model sketched may not meet your requirements—but there's one that will! Made-to-order and especially designed to fill YOUR needs. But seeing is believing—drop in and try one on. W. H. Phelps & Co., 28 Tremont St. Hub. 2490.

To Reduce

Fashion Points

a derisive finger at everything boyish this year—your wardrobe must include a long hairpiece for evening wear at least! Wind-blown bobbed debutantes and silver-locked matrons alike are intrigued by the beautiful Bernstein transformers! These transformers are featherweight, and fasten so deftly to your head that they can be dressed in any fashion desired—in a cluster of curls—rolled into a puff or crossed in the back. If your hair is brittle, thin or faded wear a Bernstein transformer—and you'll be sure that your coiffure will be perfect! The transformation sketched is medium length, has natural drawn parting and large and distinctive wave. Most becoming and attractive for all occasions. Transformations and wigs redressed at reasonable prices. Samuel Bernstein Hair Co., 480 Washington St. Lib. 5800.

Contourette

There is no Royal Road to beauty and the figure is the most important adjunct to beauty. We are "creatures of habit" and have grown used to wearing elastic webbing in our foundation garments, but it does not require the 'searching eye' to perceive the havoc this bad habit has made. Humps! bulges! Here is an original idea made WITHOUT elastic webbing. Adjustable lacings at side gives one control over abdomen and hips and conform them to a slender line. Caporn specializes in individual work, with a system all her own, can give a one day service. Remember that it costs no more approximately than ready-mades and much superior. Call and see models; try on before ordering. CAPORN, 110 Tremont St. (near Park St.) Lib. 6649.

PLANS FOR FETE TO MR. HEARST COMPLETED

San Francisco, Oct. 7—With only the final details remaining to be worked out, the official program for San Francisco's civic welcome and reception to William Randolph Hearst has been made public by the committee in charge.

City, state and other officials, veteran groups and representatives of business and commercial organizations will participate in the welcome to be [illegible] October 16.

The ceremonies will convey to the publisher San Francisco's appreciation of the part he has played in both civic and national affairs.

The program was decided upon at a meeting of the official committee of which Mayor James Rolph, Jr., is honorary chairman and Supervisor Andrew J. Gallagher, chairman.

MET BY COMMITTEE

Mr. Hearst will arrive in San Francisco at 9:30 a. m. He will be met in San Jose by a committee including Supervisors Gallagher, Angelo J. Rossi and J. Emmett Hayden, Marshall Hale and a representative of the Native Sons of the Golden West and of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

At the Townsend st. station the reception committee will be headed by Mayor Rolph and the national colors of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who have asked to take part in the welcome, will be displayed.

Before leaving the station Mr. Hearst will be presented with a token of appreciation for his work in behalf of veterans welfare legislation by Mrs. Leah Davis, national president of the Gold Star Mothers.

PUBLIC RECEPTION

In an automobile with Mayor Rolph and Supervisors Gallagher and Rossi, Mr. Hearst will be taken from the station to his hotel. Later, depending upon the preference of the city's official guest, there will be a public reception in the rotunda of the City Hall and the presentation of a medal inscribed with the seal of the city in recognition of Mr. Hearst's long career of public service.

San Francisco's official reception will assume special significance in view of the fact that it was in San Francisco, 50 years ago, that Mr. Hearst founded The Examiner, first of his national chain of publications.

Veterans Join Praise for Mr. Hearst's Americanism

Los Angeles, Oct. 7.—First Division Veterans of the A. E. F. and additions, United Spanish War Veterans, today joined the concourse of former soldiers and sailors of Uncle Sam's service in expressing formally their appreciation of the alert Americanism of William Randolph Hearst.

While the committee headed by John C. Austin, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, is engaged in preparations for the testimonial banquet to Mr. Hearst Tuesday evening, Oct. 14, in the Hotel Biltmore, the Los Angeles veterans are arranging for participation in the welcome to Mr. Hearst.

Resolutions of the Spanish War Veterans praise Mr. Hearst for his courageous exposure of the proposed secret treaty between France and England and express appreciation of his loyal, devoted championship of the cause of veterans in state and nation.

Members of the Southern California sector of the Society of the First Division, A. E. F., in their annual reunion Friday night, adopted resolutions declaring Mr. Hearst had been a constant friend of veterans, that he had displayed steadfast allegiance to the American traditions of free speech and a free press, and that his expulsion from France was due to his having performed an important patriotic duty.

Stock in Trade May Make Business Poor

Editor Boston American:

A German professor let out this great secret at Harvard yesterday, "Business will pick up in 1931." Why, man alive, authority on political economy, business is already picking up.

There are a few squealing about business. If business was at a top notch figure, they would have something to groan over. There are some business men who are never pleased with business conditions, no matter how brisk business is. They have the habit of whining.

Step into their store and you see customers buying but they take you to the back part of the store and show you some stock lying idle on the counters. It is old stock. No one could sell it, no matter how lively business is. The moral is this: "Don't growl over business when your stock is passe."

Radio Rube Dialect Declared Offensive

Editor Boston American:

Does anyone really think the radio broadcast, imitating in so-called rube dialect our rural population is either entertaining or good advertising? Most of those rube broadcasts apparently originate in New York—the big town. Perhaps the population down there think it a short wave broadcast from some foreign country instead of their own mothers and fathers back home.

More Than Conference Needed to Aid Jobless

Editor Boston American:

All we hear or see in the papers is conferences being called to try and solve the unemployment situation, and after it is all over they are nowhere nearer finding a solution for it, and can you blame the Reds for getting a foothold in this country. Take a look around the Common—persons who, when laid off, had good clothes, time pieces, etc., and looked presentable have now sold their clothes, watches, etc., trying to get by, and when they are down to their last cent what are they going to do?

Why can't some of these firms that have got a substantial surplus, use part of it and start up for a couple of months thereby creating a buying market. How about the Red Cross, they have plenty of money for floods, earthquakes, famines, etc., an[d] don't they use some of that money for this near famine that is throughout the country now? This is only a sample that is in my mind, more will come later, of conditions that I know.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

It is nearly time that justice was paid to the hunting sportsmen of this State. The golfers, football, baseball, tennis players, etc., have the privilege to entertain themselves on Sunday with their sport. The ban, however, still holding against the hunters. I believe that we have as much right to the Sunday privileges as other sportsmen.

My opinion of a real sportsman is one who is fair-mainded toward other sportsmen. Now fellow hunters, who agree with me on this subject, get your ideas in this paper. You know that ideas kept to yourself mean nothing.

Says Reds Have Put Boston on the Rocks

Editor Boston American:

I quite agree with Joe Hines about the Reds to be exiled. They sure have put Boston on the rocks all right, say nothing of the rest of the country. They are the greatest bunch of trouble makers in the world. Not only on land, but on the sea they have got things just about as they want them. They are all the time kicking. Of course the business man gets tired and then out everybody goes all on account of the Reds.

Hens Get Wise And Fewer Are Killed

Editor Boston American:

It is not my mere fancy that impels me to write this to your paper, but after reading what you said about deaths from autos, I have noticed the following event on the roads of New England upon which I travel daily excepting Sundays.

Somehow the hens of today have more instinct or faculty for getting out of the way of automobiles than hens had 20 years ago.

If this is true, then the domestic fowl of today reveals one of the world's secrets, besides laying eggs.

It is a fact that when I first started out on my trips of New England driving my auto for my business hens were often seen lying dead in the road victims of autos. I seldom see anything like this today. The hens have learned a lesson.

Says Puritans Obeyed Bible in Witch War

Editor Boston American:

That preacher in Greater Boston who railed two Sundays ago in his pulpit against the Puritans for hanging witches should be reminded that the Puritans took their defense against witches from the Bible. Read Exodus, 22d chapter, 18th verse:

"Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live."

By the way, it is a mistake to say that Boston burned witches. No witch was ever burnt to death in Boston or anywhere else.

Points to Graft In Religious Drives

Editor Boston American:

Often the best things in life fall into the arms of graft. Evangelistic campaign promoters often work hard to put over a religious campaign, as they did recently in one of the cities of Tennessee, but they were well paid.

I am sending this as a warning and advise investigation as the above campaign revealed that the promoters took 80 per cent of the money collected and gave 20 per cent to the churches.

This may be good business, but downright poor Christianity, in my estimation. Promoters of evangelistic campaigns need more conversion than the innocent that they prey upon. I hope I am just in saying this, but facts make it very plain to me.

Education as Defined at B. U.

Editor Boston American:

Who says it is educated in Boston? Some one had this bug of education in his mind and at Boston University, it was allowed to fly in this way: To be educated is to think sincerely and show discipline in your thoughts. It is to show the spirit of tolerance, not fly off the handle.

It is to show the power of discernment. It is training that shows the habit of success has been acquired. It shows the ability to develop and to expand. It shows the power of suspense.

If you can size up these requirements, you may call yourself an educated human being without any frills.

B. U. Students Have "Pee-Wee" League Council

Editor Boston American:

Students of the College of Liberal Arts of Boston University are making a test case of the League of Nations. It is a miniature League of Nations, much like the Pee-Wee golf. Here representatives at the Students' House on Bay State rd., composed of different nationalities, are scratching their young heads over this court to pick flaws in it and to sift whatever good there is in this combine.

Students from Poland, Armenia, Switzerland, Sweden, Scotland, Germany, Palestine, Ireland, and many "Yanks," make this deliberative body. They undoubtedly will have great influence with the parental body, of which they are very promising children. Time will tell.

Everyone Should Have Two Lines of Endeavor

Editor Boston American:

Education in New England is not affected by hard times, if we are to judge by the gifts given to several prominent schools in this state.

Millions of dollars have been given lately to Phillips Andover Academy, half a million to Groton School, and other schools in New England. St. Mark's, Southboro, with its new master, and Lenox School will soon be remembered with legacies.

Money spent in education is well spent. If you can't give your children money give them a good dose of education which is largely vocational, and let them know two trades. If your daughter is a stenographer, let her add to her efficiency some other vocation. When one is dull use the other.

To be tied down to one vocation, one profession, one trade in the coming era will find you often stranded. Learn two trades, or two occupations, and work them when you get the opportunity. Fight dulness in trade or business by working another angle of your knowledge.

LABOR RESOLVES SEEK END OF PROHIBITION

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

"The Edgewater kid," Polack Gorio's North Side gang, of which Annie's man, is murdered. Goldie the Kid was a member, accuses Kinky King, leader of the West Side gang. Kinky swore to get the Kid for taking Annie from him. Later Kinky is found murdered, a gold revolver, similar to that possessed by Goldie, beside him. To satisfy the public's demand for action, the police chief arrests Annie. He refuses Goldie's request for her release. In revenge, Goldie's gang throws the theater district into darkness and destroys public property. Laddie plans to rescue Annie.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 10

CENTRAL POLICE DETAIL, headquarters for important prisoners and those detained for "front office" questioning was located in a three-story squat red brick building two blocks from City Hall.

The city had long been promised a modern up-to-date police building. But year after year the plans were pigeon-holed, while aggressive politicians won praise for themselves by diverting the building funds to schools, parks, bridges and boulevards. These things impressed the public far more. The cops could wait. Who thinks about cops, anyway, on election day?

Here were the "blind" cells—the men in a dark, foul-smelling basement, the women on the first floor. Day and night the patrol wagons drew up the narrow little alley and the prisoners were hustled out and thrown into the antiquated cages, where they were held without booking—sometimes for weeks.

Chief on Second

The chief of detectives had his office on the second floor. The captain of the First Precinct was on the first floor, just off the street. The lineup room was in the basement, and every morning at 10 o'clock the prisoners were marched out one by one, placed under a bright light, while masked detectives stood about in groups and scrutinized them.

There was a small back-room which was known to every crook in the city. The "gold-fish bowl." It was devoid of furniture save one chair. In a corner lay an ordinary rubber hose.

Sometimes prisoners were entertained here—with little formality. Here detectives vented their sadistic wrath against helpless men, flagellating them with the rubber hose and pummeling them with their beefy fists. This was known as "seeing the goldfish," a facetious way of characterizing the American Inquisition.

There was not a gangster in the Big Burg who did not know the layout of Central Detail. Most of them, whether they had been guilty of any crime or not, had been hustled down there at different times to taste the grim hospitality of the coppers and dicks, "on suspicion."

Annie Still Crying

Polack Annie was still bawling her eyes out at a few minutes to midnight, and police headquarters had sunk back into its nocturnal tranquillity when Goldie Gorio gave his final instructions to his two dozen hoodlums in the converted stable where he had set up his new concentration camp.

"I don't want no useless shootin'," he ordered. "I don't want coppers' blood on our hands. Of course you never can tell what's goin' to happen. But the way I got this thing doped we'll have Annie out o' there before them flat-feet get their breath."

He looked around at the hard tense faces before him.

"I'm goin' to spring her myself——"

"But, Chief, there ain't no use you takin' no chances," whined Chip Hummel.

"You heard me," snapped Goldie. Then he continued:

"Now, Moon-Face," he turned to a slender fellow whose countenance was dished out like a crescent. "You know how to jim up that signal system. You used to be with the telephone company, so don' make no mistakes."

"Oke, Boss," answered Moon-Face, grinning and drawing his linesman's tools from his pocket. "It's jimmed."

"Now, you six," indicated Goldie, laying out a pencilled chart on the table before him, "I want you on the corner to the South. Nobody gets through—see? Have your car pointin' North with the engine goin'."

"Right!" chorused Clammy Withers, assigned to lieutenant the half dozen.

"And, you guys," he turned to another group. "I want you to do the same at this north intersection. Keep that street clear, because we're goin' out that way

The executive council's report, containing the recommendation for modification of the Volstead Act, was split into sections and alloted to various committees.

Heated controversy is expected when the 2.75 beer proposal is brought out of committee, as many delegates favor the resolution calling for the repeal of the Volstead Act.

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera take a picture of some news event while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

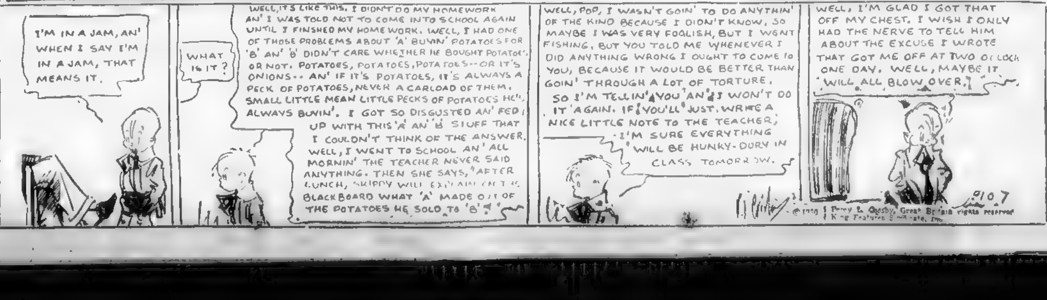
SKIPPY — A Load Off His Chest — By Percy Crosby



I'M IN A JAM, AN' WHEN I SAY I'M IN A JAM, THAT MEANS IT.
WHAT IS IT?
WELL, IT'S LIKE THIS. I DIDN'T DO MY HOMEWORK AN' I WAS TOLD NOT TO COME INTO SCHOOL AGAIN UNTIL I FINISHED MY HOMEWORK. WELL, I HAD ONE OF THOSE PROBLEMS ABOUT 'A' BUYIN' POTATOES FOR 'B' AN' 'B' DIDN'T CARE WHETHER HE BOUGHT POTATOES OR NOT. POTATOES, POTATOES, POTATOES—OR IT'S ONIONS.. AN' IF IT'S POTATOES, IT'S ALWAYS A PECK OF POTATOES, NEVER A CARLOAD OF THEM. SMALL LITTLE MEAN LITTLE PECKS OF POTATOES HE'S ALWAYS BUYIN'. I GOT SO DISGUSTED AN' FED UP WITH THIS 'A' AN' 'B' STUFF THAT I COULDN'T THINK OF THE ANSWER. WELL, I WENT TO SCHOOL AN' ALL MORNIN' THE TEACHER NEVER SAID ANYTHING. THEN SHE SAYS, "AFTER LUNCH, SKIPPY WILL EXPLAIN ON THE BLACKBOARD WHAT 'A' MADE OUT OF THE POTATOES HE SOLD TO 'B'."
WELL, POP, I WASN'T GOIN' TO DO ANYTHIN' OF THE KIND BECAUSE I DIDN'T KNOW, SO MAYBE I WAS VERY FOOLISH, BUT I WENT FISHING, BUT YOU TOLD ME WHENEVER I DID ANYTHING WRONG I OUGHT TO COME TO YOU, BECAUSE IT WOULD BE BETTER THAN GOIN' THROUGH A LOT OF TORTURE. SO I'M TELLIN' YOU AN' I WON'T DO IT AGAIN. IF YOU'LL JUST WRITE A NICE LITTLE NOTE TO THE TEACHER, I'M SURE EVERYTHING WILL BE HUNKY-DORY IN CLASS TOMORROW.
WELL, I'M GLAD I GOT THAT OFF MY CHEST. I WISH I ONLY HAD THE NERVE TO TELL HIM ABOUT THE EXCUSE I WROTE THAT GOT ME OFF AT TWO O'CLOCK ONE DAY. WELL, MAYBE IT WILL ALL BLOW OVER.

Seven Feet of Policeman

CARL SANDERS, DENVER POLICEMAN, is 7 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 318 pounds. Carl's wife, Joeanna, is only 4 feet 11 inches tall and weighs 107 pounds. But it is perfectly obvious who has the last word in the Sanders family. Not that words are often necessary, for they are considered the ideal couple of their town. They are shown as their train arrives in Boston for the American Legion convention. (International Newsreel photo.)

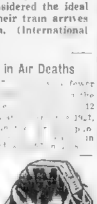
Immediate Relief for INDIGESTION



GENUINE PHILLIPS MILK OF MAGNESIA
For Troubles due to Acid INDIGESTION SOUR STOMACH HEARTBURN CONSTIPATION GAS NAUSEA

WHAT most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. Food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention, it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate with no harmful after-effects.

Once you learn this perfect way you'll never deal in any other manner with the headaches, gas, bloating, nausea, dizziness, indigestion, biliousness, etc., due to an over-acid stomach and bowels.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips'. It is always a liquid; never made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips' on the bottle. All drug-stores—25c and 50c.

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA

TILL WE MEET AGAIN

Smile the while you kiss me sad adieu,
When the clouds roll by I'll come to you,
Then the skies will seem more blue,
Down in lovers' lane, my dearie,
Wedding bells will ring so merrily,
Every tear will be a memory,
So wait and pray each night for me,
Till we meet again

MY BUDDY

Nights are long since you went away,
I think about you all through the day,
My buddy, my buddy,
No buddy quite so true,
I miss your voice, the touch of your hand,
Just long to know that you understand,
My buddy, my buddy,
Your buddy misses you

SMILES

There are smiles that make us happy,
There are smiles that make us blue,
There are smiles that steal away the tear drops,
As the sunbeams steal away the dew,
There are smiles that have a tender meaning,
That the eyes of love alone may see,
And the smiles that fill my life with sunshine
Are the smiles that you give to me.

K-K-K-K-KATY

K-K-K-Katy, beautiful Katy,
Your the only g-g-g-girl that I adore
When the m-m-m-moon shines,
Over the cowshed,
I'll be waiting at the k-k-k-kitchen door

IT'S A LONG, LONG WAY TO TIPPERARY

It's a long way to Tipperary,
It's a long way to go,
It's a long way to Tipperary,
To the sweetest girl I know!
Goodbye, Piccadilly
Farewell, Leicester Square,
It's a long way to Tipperary,
But my heart's still there.

KEEP THE HOME FIRES BURNING

Keep the home fires burning
While your hearts are yearning
Tho' your lads are far away
They dream of home

There's a silver lining
Thro' the dark clouds shining,
Turn the dark clouds inside out,
Till the boys come home.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER

Oh, say! can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming?
And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there
Oh, say, does that Star Spangled Banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

PACK UP YOUR TROUBLES

Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag,
And smile, smile, smile,
While you've a lucifer to light your fag,
Smile, boys, that's the style

What's the use of worrying?
It never was worth while,
So pack up your troubles in your old kit bag,
And smile, smile, smile

THE MARCH OF THE LEGIONNAIRES

(Written Especially for the Legion Convention and Featured by Many Bands.)

Sing all you Yankee Legionnaires who fought for liberty,
All you men of peace who heard the call that rang from sea to sea
But gone is the past into the vale, we're here because we're here
So let us sing this little song and end it with a cheer

Legion on! Legion on!
Shout out the cry of the Legionnaires,
Arm stretched wide 'gainst the tide,
Singing a song as we march along
Our message goes far into space,
Till the answer clear returns,
Till the final call we will be all for all
On the march of the Legionnaires

(Copyright by Ives & Whelton and reprinted by special permission.)

AMERICA

My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing,
Land where my fathers died!
Land of the Pilgrims' pride!
From ev'ry mountain side,
Let freedom ring!

We'll have you understand

We're from Iowa,

Clown Band

THEY'RE HERE! The Anheuser Busch band, consisting of 18 talented musicians, all Legionnaires of Kansas City, Mo., arrived in Boston to attend the convention. This band, attractively dressed in clown uniforms, thrilled thousands. Their antics held the interest of many children along the march to their hotel. (Staff photo.)

WAR ORPHANS' LAW PRAISED

Mrs. Dorothy Harper of Washington, national chairman of education of war orphans, declared Massachusetts has the finest laws of any state governing the education of war orphans.

Mrs. Harper said she had reached this conclusion after a nation-wide survey, pointing out that in Massachusetts scholarships are given direct, while in other states they are given to institutions. She will read a report of her work at the afternoon session of the Legion Auxiliary.

She is a candidate for national president.

That Old Bugle Call, Vets Find It Easy to Answer Now

"You Gotta Get Up—You Gotta Get Up," the old reveille of cold gray dawns in the army, called sleepy-eyed detachments of legionnaires out at every corner and sign-post along the line of march today. They used the old call to round up the boys, but they reacted to it today with an enthusiasm never known in war days.

A stiff east wind stirred in the grand-stand along the line of march, playing tricks with pretty girls' dresses and generally adding pep to the scene.

LEGION BOYS MISS ELSIE

That smiles-and-wiles girl of the American Legion, Elsie Janis, no less, who sang and danced the blues away during "Over There" days, was Boston-bound last week to be the guest of the American Legion.

Lieut. W. Heggenberger of the U. S. Army Air Corps was scheduled to pick her up at Dayton, O., but at the last moment Elsie decided not to come, because she is still mourning the death of her lifetime pal and councillor her mother.

Next year the Legion hopes to have Elsie as its guest of honor, and Elsie has promised in advance not to disappoint.

48 AIRPLANES IN PARADE

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Swinging into the fourth day of the American Legion air show Boston was greeted today by 48 airplanes, one from each state in an aerial parade over the route of the street parade.

Very few of the pilots had flown together before but the entire contingent made up in thrills what they missed in exactness.

Coming from Texas, Col. William Easterwood captured the honors of the farthest from home flier in the parade.

Three planes from California flown by Lieut. Carroll, Lieut. Wallen and Capt. Stout, returned to the airport yesterday after a trip to Washington, and received the plaudits of a crowd of 20,000.

"TEDDY" KENYON WINS

"Miss America of the Air," Mrs. Cecil "Teddy" Kenyon, and the second place winner, Mrs. Jean Hoyt, were the idols of the airport today. Mrs. Kenyon, due to her excellence in piloting her Arrow sport plane, is richer by $300 and a silver cup. Mrs. Hoyt won $200 and a loving cup.

Mayor Curley, who awarded the prizes in the "Miss America" contest, stated that all the entrants should receive a prize, and that such arrangements were being made.

Boston will shortly have complete control of Governor's Island, according to Mayor Curley. The mayor had a chat with President Hoover and was promised the transfer of Governor's Island to the city within 10 days.

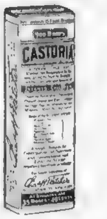
FOR ANY CHILD



CHILDREN are happy and carefree by nature, so when they cry for no apparent reason any careful mother worries. No one can always guess just what is wrong but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as baby has a fretful spell, is feverish and cross and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes it is constipation. Just keep Castoria handy and give freely for any of the above conditions; relief will follow promptly.

All through babyhood, Castoria is a mother's standby, and wise mothers do not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Just increase the dose of Castoria and keep the youngster's stomach sweet and the bowels in good order.

To be sure of getting genuine Fletcher's Castoria you should look for this signature: Chas H Fletcher

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

A little thinner 'round the waist, a little graver 'round the temples. Otherwise President Hoover looked his same old self.

The [illegible] stories which have [illegible] from Washington that the [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] strength and [illegible] his [illegible] were [illegible] indeed.

Boone, by the way, is a Congressional Medal of Honor man, won it with the leathernecks over there by pulling a [illegible] size out of No Man's Land under machine-gun fire. He confided that the President is in perfect physical trim for his years. That was enough to make Boone happy. He is responsible for the President's health and the health of any President, whoever he may be, is important to the country and to the world.

HARD WORKER

Old Washington newspaper friends with the President's party told us the President is quick to show nervous reactions amounting almost to petulance at times. He is yet to acquire the necessary habit of farming out the governmental department work to subordinates and colleagues in whom he could place implicit trust. He wants to do it all himself.

The inaudibility of his voice at the Governor's luncheon at the [illegible] Plaza—he could scarcely be heard more than 20 feet—was no sign of his being tired or worn. He has a thin, low-pitched voice. No [illegible] an orator. The hall had not been equipped with mechanical amplifiers. His brief spontaneous talk had not been anticipated.

Politics follows the President. His every act is open to political interpretations. That is why Mr. Coolidge, with his large experience, was always on guard.

Mr. Hoover is not so alert. At Philadelphia Gifford Pinchot called to pay his respects when the train paused. Pinchot was crowded out of the picture. A presidential secretary stepped in front of him when the camera snapped. Some said it was by design, "a smart trick." Pinchot is an insurgent and thoroughly independent Republican. The people like him; that is why he wins. But not the Republican Presidents, at least, since Roosevelt.

SMILES ON BUTLER

Here in Boston, Mr. Hoover gave some of his show to William M. Butler. Also to Louis K. Liggett, the Republican national committeeman. The political interpreters thought it significant [illegible] that word [illegible] popular with them that he should share the picture with the dry candidate for senator here while keeping aloof, for the most part, from wet Republican candidates in New Jersey and New York. We reminded them that he had indorsed Morrow.

"He could have done nothing else," they responded. "But he didn't cart them around on his special train." Butler rode in from Providence with the President.

[illegible] will be recalled [illegible] White House [illegible] the President [illegible] Massachusetts [illegible] Even before that time the Hoover organization was [illegible] away from the Old Guard [illegible] here. It had [illegible] Hoover [illegible].

Richardson, it is said, suggested that the President give Butler a bit and Liggett the glad-hand [illegible] Mrs. Coolidge [illegible] for the most part, Legionnaires.

One thing is certain, however. The President is in good health and appearance. All talk to the [illegible].

Marked by impressive ceremonies in synagogues and temples, Succoth, the Jewish feast of thanksgiving, began last evening.

PHILIP MERIVALE SCORES IN 'DEATH TAKES A HOLIDAY' AT PLYMOUTH

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

WHEN SUCH an elusive figure as Death takes three days off, the world, as you can easily figure it out for yourself, has 72 hours in which to catch up with calamity and misadventure. That is about what entered the affairs of the drama at the Plymouth last evening. For here, you discovered, "Death Takes a Holiday" gave the Professional Players of Boston an opportunity to lead the theater into health and prosperity after some perilous drifting on treacherous shoals.

It's an imaginative thing—this play of Albert Casella—and straight from the Italian, with some adaptation, of course, by Walter Ferris. On the strength of its nine months of opulent residence on Broadway and its unanimous choice by the Professional Players as a work worthy of their earnest exploitation for these regions, the play may immediately be inscribed in the records as drama well worth the price. Surely there could be nothing more novel in the way of stage entertainment than to meet Death on your own terms not his. For here, adroitly played by Philip Merivale, the old boy turns mortal for a spell and completely upsets the peace and comfort of Duke Lambert's [illegible] household.

Nicholas Young

ONLY THE DUKE himself knows the identity of his mysterious guest and he spent most of the evening [illegible] through the scenes in a blue funk. There was reason for it, too. For Prince Sirki, the shadowy visitor, appeared to have an eye for the ladies. His intentions were honorable but definitely uncertain. He charmed women with his human graces but the time was short and to all except the lovely Grazia, two hours of bliss was insufficient especially with the future so much in doubt.

FANTASTIC AS THE entertainment [illegible] proved to be. It was possessed of a good measure of glamor. If the Prince was interesting as a mortal, it was, perhaps, because of the speculations involved in his sudden appearance at the Lambert castle. Strange interventions have, from time to time, kept the pulse of the theater beating but none that we can recall has awakened a keener playgoer interest than this [illegible] unseen world. Mr. Merivale, [illegible] you can believe it, [illegible] makes Death an agreeable person, a little stiff and solemn [illegible] with a certain [illegible] twist that cuts the sharp [illegible] and leaves the [illegible] beyond [illegible] not half as bad as it has been reported.

AN EXCELLENT COMPANY made Mr. Merivale's task lighter by far than you might have [illegible] could not have been improved [illegible] Andrews and Helen Vinson, each in turn the object of Death's [illegible] to form.

IF DEATH [illegible] a pleasant fellow [illegible] meet suddenly, Mr. Merivale goes a long way to make him passingly agreeable.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7 Versatility is John Barrymore's middle name. He stops at nothing when there is a good play in the offing. He ranges from handsome, debonair young heroes to decrepit, palsied old men.

His latest plan is to play the colorful role of a typical Sherlock Holmes detective, in "The Maltese Falcon." Something different from anything he has played on the screen. 'Tis a mystery detective yarn by Dashiell Hammett and while John and Dolores and the wee bairn are sailing the waters near Guadalupe Islands, John is reading the play. Didn't I read somewhere that John has gone seal hunting, trying to locate some mysterious white seals? He is romantic that way, is the brother of Ethel Barrymore.

SOMEBODY AT PARAMOUNT must have a sense of humor. Clara Bow's next story, which was written by Vina Brothers Shore, will have a gambling sequence and a new title, "No Limit." Clara, with Frank Tuttle, the director, leaves for New York tonight to make her picture in the East. I call it smart to make a picture like this following all the excitement over Clara's reputed losses. Maybe Will Rogers' attitude, after all, to make fun of the whole thing, is the right one. He was very amusing at the opening of "The Big Trail," at the Chinese Theater, when he said that he supposed the Fox Company would now be asking to put a "moral clause" in his next contract. Mr. Rogers is so popular that whatever he does or says is repeated. It must be a great responsibility to be quoted so frequently.

AFTER A GAY holiday in New York with his wife, Conrad Nagel is coming back home to settle down and go to work. Holidays are good for the best of us for they take the cobwebs out of the head, give us a fresh viewpoint and let us see that the little world in which we live is not the only place of importance. Conrad has been chosen for the lead in "Half Gods," which Hobart Henley will make for Universal.

ONE OF THE QUICKEST trips on record was made by Joan Bennett to New York. It seems only yesterday I saw her at the Embassy and she said: "I am leaving for New York." Then I had word that she was returning and would be here in a day or two. The trip across the country these days means nothing, so many people are commuting. Joan apparently changed her mind about going on the stage and will come back to pictures and her friends in Hollywood. I believe that "Smilin' Thru" will be made shortly now with Joan in the leading role.

WHILE WE ARE discussing movie news it is interesting to know that Nicholas Soussanin, husband of Olga Baclanova, plays the doctor in "The Criminal Code." Their baby will soon be old enough to leave and Miss Baclanova is getting ready to return to the screen and stage. Chester Morris' father, William Morris, has been signed for "On the Spot," Jack Oakie's picture. Buster Collier, who can be seen almost any day lunching with his dad, William Collier, Sr., is out on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot. Buster is in "Reducing," the Marie Dressler and Polly Moran picture. Richard Tucker has signed for "New Morals," the coming William Powell event, and Dewitt Jennings, who has played more detectives than any actor on the screen, is at Columbia where he is the captain of the guard in "Criminal Code," the same kind of role he had in "The Big House."

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: MARGUERITE LIVINGSTON with red hair on the United Artist lot where she is playing in "Kiki." EDDIE CANTOR expected here for the opening of "Whoopee" Wednesday night. HELEN FERGUSON building a new house in Beverly Hills. PATSY RUTH MILLER discussing Mexico City with her friends. She and Tay Garnett are just back. The LAWRENCE TIBBETTS entertaining with a buffet supper. WILLIAM HAINES selecting some special antiques for his shop. RUTH ROLAND and BEN BARD dancing at George Olsen's night club. MARY PICKFORD and DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS entertaining at the Embassy for the motion picture relief fund. CLARA BOW selecting some new clothes for New York. MARY EATON and MILLARD WEBB on their way to New York. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

GLORIA SHINES IN 'WIDOW'

The Cast

Tamarind	Gloria Swanson
Gerry	Owen Moore
Victor	Lew Cody
Valli	Margaret Livingston
Lodge	William Holden
Jose Alvarado	Herbert Braggiotti
Basilkoff	Gregory Gaye
Paulette	Adrienne D'Ambricourt
Marquise	Nella Walker
Masseuse	Daphne Pollard

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Gloria Swanson shines with her usual sartorial magnificence in "What a Widow!" feature film at Loew's State this week. But her role and the vehicle are below the mark she set for herself in the talkies, in "The Trespasser." Yet we gladly admit that her multitude of admirers will flock to see this new picture if only to behold their film goddess, the "glorious Gloria."

From melodrama to farce is a wide, wide step. Miss Swanson makes it but it is as if someone had laid a banana peel on the way. For she slips in the stepping. Out of her achievement in "The Trespasser" there were left memories of her that were pleasant, but so far as she is concerned, no remnant of a memory in a worthwhile vein will remain out of the rather nonsensical "What a Widow!"

Gloria Swanson

There are times when the glory of the actress does break through the clouds set about her. Her old charm, her good voice, her vibrant self, are there; but for the most part they are in eclipse. She loses herself in trying to be coy and cute, and one longs for the real Swanson to be doing her best. But one mustn't blame her wholly, because both the story handed to her to breathe life into, and its direction are exceedingly weak. The result is a chaotic condition and a disappointing Gloria Swanson.

Of the cast Owen Moore is steps ahead of his colleagues. He is superb as the lawyer who accompanies the widow on her journey abroad to protect her from fortune hunters. The plot is frothy, there are complications of an amorous nature. There is a violinist, played, by Gregory Gaye, satirically fine; there is young Herbert Braggiotti, of the famous Braggiotti family, Boston society folk, who does well. Lew Cody makes his film comeback following his long absence from pictures.

The State program has an excellent comedy, Hal Roach's "Boy Friends" in "Bigger and Better," and other sterling numbers.

ALL STAR BILL AT SCOLLAY

The vaudeville bill at the Scollay this week surpasses all recent stage shows at this theater. The program is stellar including Paul Petching & Company, Nixon and Sans, Dave Gould's champion "Scollayettes," Don Humbert, Raynor Lehr and Company, The Sensational Vardels, and Val and Ernie Stanton, who are a riot of fun.

The showmanship of E. A. Vinson, the manager, is evident also in an afterpiece which was presented with most of the artists on the bill taking part. It is called "Numbered Women," a burlesque on "Numbered Men," the feature picture. It was built around the "Scollayettes."

Also in "cells" are Don Humbert, who is a Boston boy and was given a great ovation for his fine offering. Nixon and Sans, two really fine comics, and Val and Ernie Stanton.

The Stantons are great favorites here, and gave the audience reason to justify their position as headliners. The Vardels present a death-defying stunt.

'PEEK-A-BOO' GAYETY HIT

"Peek-a-Boo," which opened yesterday at the Gayety, promises to reach the height of popularity. The demand for midnight shows was so great that there will be one every night this week. These are held particularly for the delegates to the American Legion convention and their friends and there are a number of special features.

Hal Rathbun is assisted by Leo Fields in the show. The feminine stars are headed by Erin Jackson and Jackie James. Meehan and Newman, formerly of the R. K. O. circuit, offered a specialty which went over in good shape, while the work of Tom Griffin and Bert Saunders was another hit. "Silhouette" and "Minstrel Finale" were the two big scenes. Both were full of humor, dancing and singing. Holub's Jazz Hounds added their bit to the festivities.

LILLIAN GISH IN TRIUMPH AT WILBUR

By HARRIS MORGAN

Out of the cameo brooch that grandmother wears and her granny wore it before her steps the trim bodied, slim waisted lady that some deft artist's hand had carved in the stone. She is in the flesh now. She is sad-eyed. Her face is luminous in a wistful way. Her blonde hair falls below her shoulders. Across the footlights she answers to the name of Helena Serebrakoff. Too harsh is the Slavic for Occidental ears. Bette is her own name. She is Lillian Gish come again to the stage of the personal word after an absence of lo! these 17 years. All the charm that was hers in her prime on the silent screen is still hers in the flesh-and-blood.

CHEKHOV'S UNCLE VANYA is the vehicle which brings Miss Gish to the Wilbur. It was presented last night before an excellent and appreciative audience which as eagerly acclaimed its interest in the star of so many heartful motion pictures, as it did its approval of the splendid production that Jed Harris has given the Russian comedy. After the last act the applause forced the curtain to go through a speeding series of ups and downs and it continued even after the lights were on and it was apparent there was nothing more to be done about it. It was plain that "Uncle Vanya" had scored its home-run, due to the Harris staging and the rare and rich contributions of all the actors.

THE TASK WAS A difficult one. For the play is typically Chekhov, with but little of the action and less of the smart lines that American audiences generally demand in their "legit" fare. It is a character piece, almost wholly "atmospheric," centering its attention upon emotionalism which might be called a by-product of human conduct. And yet out of these forbidding materials the Jed Harris company built up a dramatic structure that was as pure and sweet as that cameo brooch that grandmother wears, as wondrously fascinating as Miss Gish's beauty itself.

THE STORY IS A simple tale of country life in Russia. It is as drab as the lives of the rustic disturbed by the personality of the alluring Helena Serebrakoff. But the sterling effort of Miss Gish, of Osgood Perkins as the doctor, of Eugene Powers as the professor, of Zita Johann as Sonia, of dear old Kate Mayhew as the nurse and of all the rest, made the dull tale live, and breathe, and have a being that was beyond the merit of any and all its verbal lines.

Mr. Harris has now shown his full versatility as a producer. He has run the gamut from "Broadway" to the intelligentsia's "Uncle Vanya." He may not break any box office records with his Chekhov, yet he may be vastly pleased with the perfection of his handiwork.

DOROTHY LEE

"HALF SHOT AT SUNRISE," now at the new B. F. Keith's, finds Dorothy in one of her best roles.

Here and There

BOWDOIN—"All Quiet on the Western Front" and "Personality"; starting Thursday, Buster Keaton in "Doughboys" and Betty Compson in "Czar of Broadway." Cabaret night on Wednesday, vaudeville.

WALDRON'S—"Hey, Buddy," a new burlesque. Featured in the cast are Joe Rose, Jack Ormsby, George Rubin, Mary Lee Tucker, Violet Spaeth and Opal Taylor. Also feature films.

MADAM SATAN ON ORPHEUM SCREEN

Thrills, color, clever dancing, tuneful songs and a story of an affectionate husband and a too-perfect wife are features of Cecil B. De Mille's "Madam Satan," at Loew's Orpheum this week. The story concerns the marital differences of Bob and Angela Brooks, a masked ball aboard a Zeppelin at which an exotic and mysterious "Madam Satan" appears, the mid-air crack up of the airship and the descent of the hundreds of guests via parachute, all linked together with songs and the dance creations of Leroy Prinz, formerly Earl Carroll's dance director.

Florrie Le Vere, international comedienne of considerable vaudeville and musical comedy fame, tops the week's variety program. The comedienne has no difficulty carrying off comedy honors. She has a clever, amusing style and her repertoire of impersonations and satires on world-famous celebrities are subtle.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lyte, American and European dancing stars, are on this week's bill and found much favor with their ultra-smart dance offerings, in which they were assisted by Maximo's Royal Entertainers. Al Bayes and Harvey Speck were responsible for some funny moments in a comedy nonsense sketch and others appearing were Bob Fisher, blackface singing comedian and Cahill and Maybelle, aerialists.

Several short films and Hearst Metrotone News rounded out the show.

Big Fight Brings Boxing Before Bar Triumph or Fail

Huge Man Moun And Home Town Must Box on Le

Up to You, Shamus, Not to Disgrace Bos

There is in the Norse sagas a song of a journey mighty Thor to Jotunheim, home of the Jotuns, or Coming on a Jotun asleep under a tree Thor raised his mer and struck. "A breeze is stirring," mumbled the in his sleep. Thor spit on his hands and struck again bird's wing brushed my cheek," drowsily murmured th Still a third time Thor struck, calling on all his stren forger of the thunderbolts, striking the mightiest blo ever was struck by gods or men. "Birds must be ro sleepily grunted the Jotun, "a twig fell." The mighty shamefacedly skulked from Jotunheim with the laug the Jotuns ringing in his ears.

Is Shamus "Thor" Maloney tonight going to leave the Jotunheim of the Boston Garden, where he meets Primo Carnera, huge as any Jotun of the Norse sagas, with the sneering jeers of the biggest crowd that ever was jammed into Boston's big sports arena reverberating through the building?

George Underwood.

Or is he going to leave it a triumphant conqueror with the paens of a proud and pleased Boston citizenry hailing him as a hero and praising him for a deed well done and a blow well struck for the fair name of sport in the old Bay State?

Like Thor of old, Shamus, you may find the feat too much for you. No one will blame you, Jimmy, IF YOU LOSE ON THE LEVEL.

WIN OR LOSE, SEE THAT IT IS ON THE LEVEL.

If you must lower your crest, Shamus, don't lose like a yokel. Fight the good fight. If Fate is against you, lose like a true son of Brian Borou. Let your head be "bloody, but unbowed." It isn't the fact that you're licked that counts—its how did you fight, and why!

It is up to you, Jimmy—it is up to you!

We're with you, Jimmy, with you, every mother's son of us, win or lose, as long as you fight the good fight. Toppling over this Man Mountain from Italy is a mansized task. This Carnera is a vastly greater fighting man than most of the fans believe. It is only natural that his ability should be disparaged and his real fighting qualities underestimated, because of that junketing tour the smart alecks took him on across the continent, leaving criticism, opprobrium, disgust, cluttering their wake.

There was no need of those setups and "dives." This giant of an Italian can fight—make no mistake about that—he can fight. He's green, yet, and unseasoned, but unless knowledge and understanding gleaned from watching fights and fighting men for a quarter of a century are not worth a tinker's dam, only lack of experience and seasoning keeps Carnera from being right at this moment the greatest heavyweight we have seen since Jack Dempsey was at the peak of his fighting form. A year from now, Jimmy, a year from now, no fighter who has yet poked his head above the fistic horizon will be able to stand up many rounds against this gigantic 6 feet 6-inch, 270-pound mass of beef and bone.

Perhaps, Shamus, you will prove us all wrong, tonight. We hope you prove us wrong. You are an American. The American blood within us rises for you and if you plant a healthy polthogue on the giant's chin and topple him into fistic oblivion you will hear our exulting roar above all others.

But the point we're striving to drive home to you, the point all of us who are interested in, NOT SO MUCH IN KEEPING BOXING ALIVE AS KEEPING IT CLEAN AND WHOLES that we don't give a Helena who wins or lo long as THE CONTEST OR LOST ON THE LEV

Yes, Shamus, we kn are in a tough spot.

Just FIGHT ON THE that's all. FIGHT O LEVEL. The people wh to something in this state are broadminded levelheaded enough, no was unjustly censured, punished.

The citizens who co people who mean som are not going to be sta into any popular hyster something that appears but isn't.

There is something mo mere victory at stake.

You, Mister Maloney, a Signor Carnera, are b boxing before the bar of pinion.

Not only is boxing befor bar, but also the reputatio the great City of Boston and fair name of sport in the old State.

If there is any scandal o tonight's match it may mean t death of boxing in Massachusetts, perhaps in many other States, for the "game," as the fight gentry term it, is hanging by a thread in many sections of the country.

If tonight's contest is honestly, cleanly, sensationally waged, it will mean much for boxing in Boston, in Massachusetts, throughout the whole country.

Just now we have thousands of visitors from all over the country here in Boston, men of the American Legion, men who fought and risked their all for this great country, many of whom shed their blood for the little old U. S. A., and men who will carry wounds to their grave as badges of service in their country's cause.

DON'T DO ANYTHING, MISTER MALONEY AND SIGNOR CARNERA, WHICH WILL SEND THE AMERICAN LEGION AWAY SCOFFING AT THE WAY SPORTS THINGS ARE CONDUCTED IN THE OLD BAY STATE.

For the love of Mike, Shamus, when you see that whopping big Italian clamber through the ropes tonight, don't let your heart drop down in your tummy. Perk up and give the giant Italian a fight, Jimmy, for the honor of America and the good old fighting Irish blood that courses through your veins.

Once more, and above all, Shamus, and you, Primo, win or lose, LET THE FIGHT BE ON THE LEVEL.

Cubs City

Chicago, Oct. won the city series two, by taking the s ciding game from the Wh 6 to 4.

A three-run rally in the ninth staved off defeat and a knotting of the series standing for the Bruins. With the score 4 to 3 against them in the final frame, English and Cuyler hit safely.

Hack Wilson followed with a single, scoring English with the tying run. Stephenson was purposely passed, but a sacrifice fly scored Cuyler with the second run of the inning. An error by Clancy on a grounder by Grimm tallied Wilson with the third run and put the Bruins too far ahead to be overtaken.

N. E. 'Pro' Golf Tourney

Gene Anderson, of the Colonial Golf Club, won the New England professional golfers tournament at the North Shore Golf and Tennis Club from a field of 42 of the leading pros in this section with a score of 109 for the 27 holes.

Usually a 36-hole affair, the play was changed to 27 holes because of the early approach of darkness and as the course is a nine-hole layout this was suitable to all.

Jack Curley, of Stoney Brae, finished a stroke behind Anderson with a total of 110 and Jimmy Duffy, of Fabyans, was two strokes away with a 111.

Willie Ogg of Worcester finished in fourth place with a total of 112.

Anderson played brilliantly during the first two rounds and got a 38 for the first nine and a 34 for the second which gave him a 72, and he led the field at the end of the morning play by three strokes.

Bill Thurston of Mt. Pleasant, Willie Ogg and Jack Curley were tied at 75.

Anderson played his last nine in 37 to nose out Curley by a single stroke.

The Colonial pro's second nine, a 34 which included four threes, was the best nine of the day.

in the second period Mike Vodoklys scored the first Maroon and Gold points with a 10-yard dash off tackle, right after the opening of the second period.

B C added the decisive touchdown in the middle of the third session, when Walter Kelley tossed a forward which Ed Gallagher, who played most of the game in Capt. John Dixon's wing post, grabbed over the heads of two Marine secondaries, and stepped the few necessary strides over the goal line. This score was the direct aftermath of an interception of a Marine attempted forward by Johnny Marr, who ran 52 yards to give the Eagles a first down on the Quantico 18-yard line.

The Marines were able to score in the final period, when after recovering a fumble on the B C 26-yard mark, Charley Glick, the big Marine end, who played a great game, leaped high for a forward pass from Harold Bauer to snare the ball and race the intervening five yards over the goal.

Four new men, W Gilbane, Walker, Wiley and McKeown, were ordered to the training table, making a total of 25, now on the squad.

Maloney

Jack Conway today picked Primo Carnera to win over Jim Maloney in their ten-round bout at the Boston Garden tonight.

"Carnera will prove too powerful for Maloney," said Jack. "If Shamus were fast and shifty, I would give him an even chance of winning as he has had plenty of ring experience. Maloney, however, is not any speedier than Primo, who steps round the ring in lively fashion.

"Carnera is the better puncher and also has great confidence in his own ability."

FOXX PRAISES STRATEGY OF MACK

By JIMMIE FOXX
First Baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics

Copyright 1930 by Universal Service, Inc.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 7—Most fans think it was my home run which won the fifth game. I must admit that it had much to do with it, but if you ask me it was Connie's daring in removing Earnshaw for a pinch hitter in the eighth that had the most to do with our victory.

Grove held the Cards at his mercy in the last two innings and it was Lefty's ability to do this that made those two runs win the ball game.

We are now leading the Car- dinals three games to two because we have insisted on being the ag- gressor all the way.

Several times during the game we had the opportunity of sacri- ficing a man to second with none out. In each instance Connie de- cided against the "old army game."

It so turned out that this sys- tem didn't work well as Burleigh Grimes was pitching a great game and deserved a better fate. But in the long run Mack's plan of battle has been successful in bringing us through to two pennant victories and I feel that with the next game in Philadelphia the World Series will pass into history.

The ball I hit into the left field bleachers was right over the heart of the plate. If it curved I didn't see it.

Any batter will tell you that the best plan to follow is to "pick out a good one and slam it." I did just that in the ninth inning, and if it made me happy, I am sure that it made old Frank Baker, one of the original home run kings, more so.

Series Disproves 'Lively Ball' Theory, Says Jimmy Foxx

It was Baker who told me the tendency of the home run and that thumbing he had done had recommended me to the A's. From the very start it was obvious that this time was going to be pitchers' battle. The way both Grimes and Earnshaw worked in the first two innings was a tip to the pattern of the pitchers' battle which was to follow. The way all of the pitchers have worked in this series only goes to show that most of the talk about the lively ball is a lot of frankfurters.

Good pitching can nearly always stop a bunch of good hitters. Jimmy Dykes was confronted with a puzzling play in the third when he chased the runner all the way back to second when he might have tossed the ball to Bishop.

There would have been as much argument over this play as there was over that play of yesterday when Jimmy threw wild at the crucial moment if runs had followed, but this wasn't.

My honest opinion is that Jimmy made the right play both times, but in neither case was the result satisfactory. Those plays were like the old wheeze "The operation was a success, but the patient died."

Foxx Thinks A's Will Defeat Hallahan

I think we can beat Hallahan on our home grounds, no matter who is on the mound for us. We have shown our ability to hit for extra bases all through this series and we are not going to stop until we have the sixth game tucked safely away.

Just a few words about Grimes. He pitched a fine, different game. He lost merely because he was unfor- tunate enough to put one ball in my groove. I've good stuff there seems—in this World Series the game have a tremendous ap- peal.

Macks Load Bases in 8th but Fail to Score Run

Boley followed with a bunt which bounced off the pitcher. The pitcher made an attempt to get Haas at third but failed. Earn- shaw, who had held the Cards to two hits in the first seven innings was removed from the game and Jim Moore sent to bat for him.

Grimes put himself into a terrible hole by walking the rookie to fill the sacks.

That brought up Max Bishop. The spitballer worked very care- fully on him and finally forced him to bounce to Frisch who threw to the plate forcing Haas.

Then up stepped Jimmy Dykes and Grimes got working on him and finally made him roll to Gel- bert, who tossed to Frisch, forcing Bishop. That was pitching.

And it should have broken the Macks spirit but it didn't, they stepped out in the next frame to win game and gain a decided edge in the struggle for world diamond supremacy.

It can never be said though that Grimes didn't give his all for the Cards. He did in both games and deserved a much better fate in each.

A run or two early in the game and Grimes would probably have won without much trouble.

Horween Threatens to Drop Regulars From Eleven

CRIMSON COACH FAR FROM SATISFIED WITH SHOWING OF PLAYERS SATURDAY

Threatening to drop the axe on some of the Harvard varsity players unless more speed is developed this week, Coach Arnie Horween sent his varsity eleven into a stiff scrimmage today.

Horween had fault to find with almost every department of the Harvard game with Vermont and [illegible]. Neither the forward passing or the [illegible] passing attack were the finished products Horween had expected, but the [illegible] has roused Horween's particular wrath.

With a squad of former injured players again available, Horween can afford to shift his players about as he pleases, and this may be the case unless immediate improvement is shown.

Mays Back in Togs; Crickard and White Out

Eddie Mays, Dashing [illegible] and Horween [illegible] that Mays will [illegible] Springfield. Bernie White, Harvard's first string fullback, will be kept out of scrimmage [illegible] week, however, and [illegible] Crickard will be on the [illegible].

[illegible] Harvard [illegible] the Cantabs [illegible] from West Point two weeks hence.

No [illegible] resulted from last Saturday's double-header [illegible] Horween [illegible] the Harvard [illegible] scrimmages this week.

With [illegible] Henry Geden, [illegible] and [illegible] shape [illegible] expected to [illegible] the Crimson [illegible].

[illegible] who will [illegible] Harvard [illegible] an air attack to beat Harvard. [illegible] have been drilled [illegible] the aerial game [illegible] many passes are expected for Saturday.

The team from up-state is a [illegible] than the [illegible] Springfield [illegible] which went down to a [illegible] in the Stadium two years ago.

strade there is little doubt but that Harvard is aiming directly for the Army game October 18. The Crimson team will devote the next 10 days to perfecting an air attack [illegible] uncovered in the Stadium [illegible] will rule a slight favorite to defeat Harvard, from present indications.

Harvard Tackles Charged Too High

Many hours will be spent on the tackling machines by the Harvard [illegible] week. Horween found [illegible] charging too high [illegible] opponents Saturday and seeks to correct this before another team comes to the Stadium.

Although it is Horween's policy to take the Harvard games in

TUFTS DRILLS FOR COLBY

The smooth execution of plays will be emphasized at the Tufts Oval [illegible] the team swings into the last few days of preparation for the game with Colby on Saturday.

The [illegible] has been running [illegible] the other teams, a fast, heavy combination having been developed. [illegible] and Godfrey are [illegible] the end positions but [illegible] will have to work hard to [illegible].

[illegible] and Staffen [illegible] pounds are expected to [illegible] at tackle.

Two sophomores, Cochrane and Foster, are slated to start at guard, [illegible] by Gibbons or [illegible] varsity team.

Knapman at center is considered even better than Tobey, the "fighting parson" of last year's team.

The backfield will be composed of George Lefan, quarterback, Lanna and either Hymanson or Haber, halfbacks, Clayman, fullback.

The sophomore trio, Clayman, Hymanson and Lanna, have been flashing some sensational football, but Haber has been playing in Hymanson's place lately and may start the game Saturday.

Green Stars Will Face B. U. Saturday

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 7 — Two Dartmouth regulars, Bill McCall and Henry Barber, who have been out of football for nearly two weeks will play against Boston University on Saturday.

George Pe[illegible] returned to left end, and the moving of Aaron Fitzgald to fill the vacancy by the injured Len [illegible] at right half back were the two changes in the first team organization.

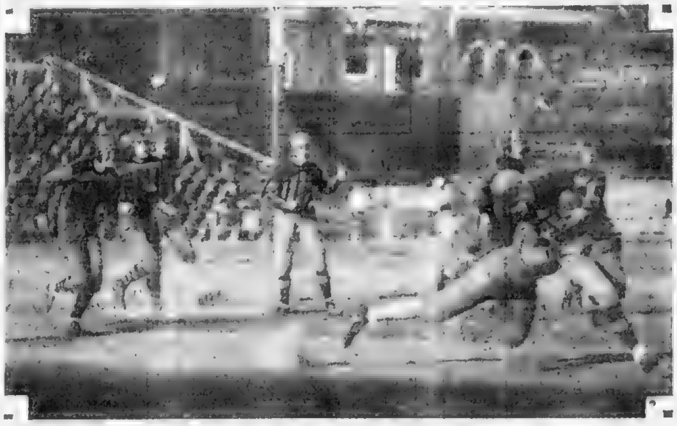
EAGLE TACKS HIS TALONS ON A MARINE



JOE McKENNEY SURELY HAS HIS B. C. gridmen tackling this season if the above photo means anything. Poppleman sterling Marine back, was running free around the end when Bill Bennett of Boston College came hurtling through the air with a nice flying tackle to crash him to the ground. If all the Eagles go after their men in this fashion Boston College should have great success this season. Boston College captured the Marines after a hard game, but many Eagles were injured.

X-RAY TERRIER PIVOT MAN

John McCarthy regular Boston University pivot man, will be out for at least two weeks.

Jack came out of the New Hampshire game with a chest pain and it is feared that McCarthy has a cracked rib.

If McCarthy will be out for two weeks, Coach Mahaney will make the shift he intended to earlier in the season and take Lobel out of his tackle position and have him [illegible] the ball against Dartmouth at Hanover next Saturday.

Lobel was [illegible] out at center the first week of practice but was shifted back to his tackle position on account of a scarcity of tackles.

The Terrier coach now has Lee Stone, however, who was a regular last year available and Lee can take Lobel's place at tackle and Lobel can move over to center.

Passes and Fumbles

By BILL GRIMES

Boston College should benefit greatly from the Marine game. The Leathernecks are a hard-hitting, clean aggregation and their style of play offered the best test B. C. could encounter prior to the Fordham game.

The Marines made a decided hit by their demeanor on the field. There is nothing of the service type of football in the Marine's play. They are not the greatest team in the country but they offer a brand of opposition needed by big colleges to prime them for their major games.

If yesterday's game can be used as a criterion, Tom Keady's Marines should have no trouble in the future getting an all-college schedule. Dartmouth would be making a step in the right direction to take on the Marines in place of one of their early season opponents.

The Boston College and Marine offenses were [illegible] due to the strong front lines. Both lines were effective defensively but lacked the necessary offensive punch.

As a result of yesterday's game, Boehner and Colbert will be out of the Boston College lineup for some time. Unless these field generals are back in shape by the holiday, Boston College is going to have trouble with Fordham, one of the strongest teams in the East.

With Bill McCall and Hank Barber back, Dartmouth will be at war strength against Boston University on Saturday. McCall and Barber have not played this season for the Big Green because of injuries and the club should click with them in the lineup.

Davis-Elkins is using the two regular Marine tackles of last season.

Harry Stuhldreher is having his troubles at Villanova. He has been "high hatting" his players and a week ago they went Bolshevik and refused to dress for practice. The Gettysburg victory did not help matters at Villanova for Stuhldreher's refusal to open up in the last minutes of play was responsible for the setback.

Villanova's defeat was a shock to New York University for the understanding was that Stuhldreher was to cut loose with everything in his games before he went to New York [illegible] to be an attraction in Gotham.

Harry "Rip" Henange who witnessed the Boston College-Marine game [illegible] and the Notre Dame-Navy game at South Bend [illegible] the official opening of the new Notre Dame stadium.

After his exhibition at Fenway Park against Boston College, Whitey Lloyd former Navy star, is unlikely to play again for the Marines. He was by far the weakest man on the field and was responsible for the first B. C. touchdown. The second Eagle score can be chalked up against Bauer, another former regular at Annapolis.

On the other hand [illegible] "Peggy" O'Neil, who [illegible] his letter at Annapolis was one of the outstanding players. O'Neil [illegible] very light for the type of football the Marines [illegible] of fight and a most capable performer.

Coach Tom Keady of the Marines is a great advocate of night football and predicts that the first college that takes up the night game in this section will be a financial winner.

SUAREZ MEETS KAPLAN OCT. 22

New York, Oct. 7 (US)—The next chapter in the life and adventures of Justo Suarez, the Argentine bad man, will concern his meeting with a stumpy little man from Meriden, Conn., Kid Kaplan.

Arrangements are practically completed for a [illegible] between the pair at Madison Square Garden on Wednesday evening, Oct. 22. It may be Justo's last appearance in the United States this year as he is planning to return to Argentina in November.

Kaplan, who retired undefeated from the featherweight championship, [illegible] chief [illegible] there isn't anyone else available.

Harvard and Brown on N. U. Cage List

Northeastern's longest and most difficult basketball schedule, comprising [illegible] contests, of which [illegible] are at home, is announced for this season by Edward Parsons, athletic director. The feature of the card is the return of Harvard and Brown. Several new rivalries were added.

The Huskies, coached by Alfred McCoy, former Penn State and Lafayette athlete, and led by [illegible] Poughkeepsie, N. Y., [illegible] star, will play the following:

Dec. 6, Union at Schenectady; Dec. 10, Clark at Worcester; Dec. 18, Brown at Providence; [illegible] Newport Naval [illegible] New Bedford [illegible] Rhode Island [illegible] Massachusetts Aggies [illegible] Providence [illegible] Newport Naval at Newport [illegible] New Hampshire at Durham [illegible] Brown [illegible] Feb. 28, Pratt Institute; March [illegible] Worcester Tech at Worcester.

Longwood Finals Carded on Thursday

Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere of Southboro and Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer of [illegible] will oppose Mrs. George W. [illegible] of Brookline and [illegible] in the finals of the Longwood [illegible].

Mrs. Corbiere and Mrs. Bremer stepped into the [illegible] final round [illegible] yesterday when they defeated Mrs. George Harding and Mrs. Frank Godfrey of Boston 3-6, 6-2, 6-0.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm T. Hill of Waban [illegible] will face Mrs. W[illegible] and William Porter of Boston this morning. The Hills [illegible] and [illegible] Holmes Perkins 7-5, 6-4, in a semi-final meeting yesterday.

B. C. High Will Be Strong Against Boston Latin

By BILL CONNELL

Boston College High will be at full strength for the first time this season when it faces Charley Fitzgerald's Boston Latin school eleven at Fenway Park on Friday afternoon.

Against Cambridge Latin the Eaglets were minus the services of Nick Morris, star back, and several other capable men. [illegible] Mahoney, another fine back, was [illegible] out of the game with Boston English because of an infected foot. Joe Murphy, guard, has a cold but should be ready to play Friday.

Bill Connell

These boys will be fit for the Friday clash, the most important school game [illegible] for this week in the Hub. B. C. High has won both its games [illegible] and now has hopes of going through the season without a loss.

Boston Latin, with green material, started slowly but now is developing well and can give the private school team a good game.

With the exception of the boys who graduated almost all school backs who flashed last fall are back this year better than ever.

Tony Gen[illegible] of Lynn English is a standout. All scholastic in '29, only an injury can keep him off the all teams this fall.

Norman Rand of Salem has [illegible] this year. In [illegible] Rand had a great line to open holes for him. The Salem line is improving now but it does not compare with last year's front wall. Yet Rand can't be stopped. He comes through regularly. He is one of the [illegible] backs ever to play on a school gridiron.

Moby Adr[illegible] of Stoneham is starting to click again. Pete Fi[illegible] of Brockton is temporarily out with a poisoned elbow but he will be back making first downs for his team soon.

Harold "Timmy" Holland, captain of Beverly, gives his club a big punch. And others are doing as well. Which proves that the boys are there. Only the really good players come through year after year.

Jamaica Plain, with Paul Walsh, will provide the opposition for Steve White's South Boston boys Thursday at the Schoolboys' stadium in the Fens.

A doubleheader is slated for the Hub schoolboys at the Fens Friday. East Boston is in for a battle with Brighton. Paul Dailey, Brighton end, is playing well.

In the other half of the twin bill Memorial meets Charlestown.

Bernie Hoo[illegible] of Brookline High, a brother of Phil of B. U. [illegible] be one of the outstanding Suburban League ball carriers if he [illegible] his good work. Hoo[illegible] and fast. The [illegible] line [illegible] improving and, with protection, Bernie will [illegible] plenty of yardage. [illegible] Tim [illegible] back [illegible].

Pete [illegible] of Cambridge Latin is making a fine [illegible] man. He started the season in the backfield where weight was needed, but Coach MacDonald shifted him to tackle. The [illegible] he is great [illegible] strengthened [illegible].

Colby Eleven Will Be Reorganized

Waterville, Me., Oct. 7—Coaches Roundy and Millet of the Colby College football team are very much dissatisfied with the showing of their charges against Springfield in last Saturday's game. As a result a wholesale shakeup is anticipated in the varsity lineup this week.

The already large casualty list was expanded Saturday to include Capt. Wally Donovan, who received a wrenched knee; Bob Waite, right tackle, with an injured knee; Eddie Hayde, fullback, with a sprained ankle; and Snub Pollard, center, and Marvin Glazier, right end, who have wrenched shoulders.

Conn. Aggies Lose Pair of Regulars

Storrs, Ct., Oct. 7—A twisted knee and a broken rib may prevent Dan Chubbuck and Bob Roberts [illegible] tackle on the Connecticut Aggie football team, from playing during the remainder of the season. Two years ago Chubbuck was forced to quit football at mid-season because of a twisted knee, and it was not until last month that he re-entered the sport.

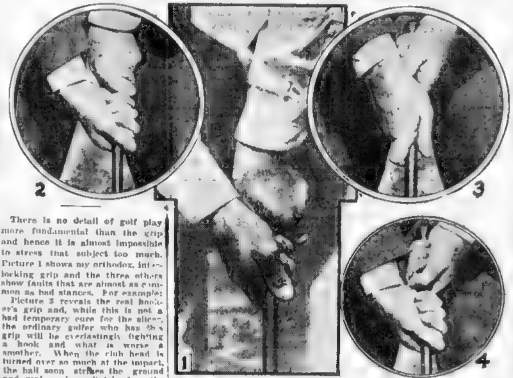
Babe Hunt Beaten

Philadelphia, Oct. 7. Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, won a close 10-round decision over Babe Hunt of Oklahoma in the main event at the arena here. Renault scaled [illegible] pounds more than his opponent. The decision was unpopular with many of the fans.

Horton Smith's Golf Lessons

Famous Young Missouri Professional Illustrates and Describes the Mechanics and Technique of Play

GRIPS—Correct, Hookers, Slicers and Opposed



There is no detail of golf play more fundamental than the grip and hence it is almost impossible to stress that subject too much. Picture 1 shows my orthodox, interlocking grip and the three others show faults that are almost as common as bad stances. For example:

Picture 2 reveals the real hooker's grip and, while this is not a bad temporary cure for the slicer, the ordinary golfer who has this grip will be everlastingly fighting a hook and what is worse a smother. When the club head is turned over so much at the impact, the ball soon strikes the ground and makes immediately for the rough on the left-hand side of the course.

The late Alex Smith, John Ball and others had the right hand under like this and got away with it, but golfers who are liable to hook and smother had better get a correct grip (See Picture 1) at once—show less of the fingers of the right hand and not so much of the back of the left hand on top.

Picture 3 illustrates the slicer's grip. When you go to a golf instructor with this grip, he will say immediately, "I see you slice."

You wonder how he knows. You couldn't do otherwise than slice with this grip; besides there would be no power in it—the right hand is too much on top, whereas the back of the left hand should be more on top.

In golf like everything else there are exceptions to every rule and sometimes you see people doing fairly well in spite of obvious faults, because they have learned to compensate for such faults. But when these people go off their game they usually go all to pieces.

I think the wisest plan is to try to do anything as well as it can be done in thoroughly tested orthodox fashion.

Picture 4 shows how practically all beginners grasp the club. It is what is technically known as the "opposed grip", because the forearms are opposed to each other. Nobody could be even a fair player with this grip. The two V's between forefinger and thumb should point toward the right shoulder; in other words, it is a back hand hit with the left hand and a forward drive with the right.

In every grip the club is held lightly in the fingers and not in the palm of the hand. In these pictures (excepting No. 1) the natural grip is shown because it is much easier for beginners to use that style of holding one's clubs.

Q AND A DEPARTMENT

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—

I am about to be married and my husband-to-be works in an office where there are a number of girls and if he takes cigars to the men should he take candy to the girls?"

—Anxious

Ans.—

As for the fact that you are about to be married; I hope, my good woman, that I may be pardoned for confessing to a rather complete lack of interest in your personal affairs. I had plenty of chances myself, so don't kid yourself on that point. In regard to whether or not your "husband-to-be," as you call him, should take candy to the girls working in his office, I personally think it would be a lot more fun all around if he would take each of them to a good show. You sillies who are getting married give me alnpas in the ummytay.

(Newspaper Article)

"In American industry, men and management have come closer together in their regard for each other, which has gradually grown into high mutuality of respect."—James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor.

Whether gents shall elevate
Themselves to such a noble state
Heretofore expected of Ladies sweet and far above
All the other ladies found
Firmly set upon the ground,
Is a problem we'd prefer
To defer.
But that ladies e'er should drop
Suddenly without a stop
To the status they have come
(Doubtless by a process dumb),
To expect of all the males
For the moment out of jails,
Is a prospect quite as frightful
As delightful

"We may be wrong," says Genevieve the kitchen cynic, "but it looks to us like unhappy marriages are about the only ones that last at all."

Stop Petting and Drinking, Says Beatrice Fairfax

She Advises Change in Methods

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will discuss a problem of heart and home at 6:15 p. m. over station WLEX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

You have solved so many girls' problems perhaps you can help me solve mine? I am [illegible] and [illegible] but am not very popular among boys. I drink, smoke, pet and like to have a good time. My girl friend [illegible] young man [illegible] and we go round a good deal together. Boys make two or three dates with me, then I never hear from them again. There's one boy I love, but I can't win him. What shall I do?

H.

Beatrice Fairfax.

Dear H.: Have you ever thought of changing your methods? If you've been drinking, [illegible] too close to an [illegible].

Too Much Family

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 23 and have been married a year. My husband does not make much money, and so we live with his family. We do have a room to ourselves, but beyond that [illegible] privacy. I am [illegible] my husband [illegible]. How can I get out of this and get a home of my own?

MISERABLE.

Dear Miserable: I understand perfectly, my dear. And I advise you to act promptly. How about taking a job? Have you the necessary experience to become a secretary? Or, there are well paid jobs in department stores if one has the capacity to work up to them. But however [illegible] produce the money to supplement your husband's income so that you can have your own home. If you are firm and persistent about this, you can carry your point—unless your husband is an unusual man—and it is a point that deserves to be carried. You have my best wishes.

He Can't Talk to Girls

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

There's one thing that I haven't learned in 19 years. I can't talk to girls. Yet I am not shy. Friends I have can talk all day long and still girls don't get tired of them. I have a prospect in mind for a nice, steady girl and she tells me she likes to chat. Now about the only way for me to get next to her is to talk—but about what? Why, I can't even talk a minute, then I'm all out of words. Maybe you can tell me what's wrong. I'm sure the girl likes my company and I'll only lose her if I don't talk.

SMITHY.

Dear Smithy: You've just hypnotized yourself into thinking you can't talk to girls, and that paralyzes your powers of speech. Like a politician about to launch a discourse, think over what you are going to talk about before you go. If the girl is interested in movies and movie people, read the movie columns in this paper and talk about screen stars. The same with any other subject she happens to be interested in.

Bands of Fur Bind Modish Frocks

By ANN ARDEN

ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m.

DELIGHTFULLY PICTURESQUE are the new evening frocks, [illegible] moods surpassing any previous season. Black rates high in fashion for all hours, and is always beloved for evening wear by the truly chic woman, especially appearing as being outstandingly "different" from last season's pastels and bright [illegible]. For evening the vivid contrast of black and white is smart at all seasons.

THE GOWN pictured was designed by Lelong. [illegible] over each hip [illegible] stiffened [illegible]. The Princess back buttons from [illegible] of the bottle. The [illegible] on fullness and despite the peplum and bow the line remains long and slim.

FUR COMES indoors this season. Not content with swathing us for encounters with zero weather, fur as a banding attains new importance.

WHETHER the frock is completely formal or informally formal, its hemline [illegible] the ankle or the toe. And more likely than not will be given a graceful swing by means of a stiffened border of horsehair braid on skirt or underskirt.

WITH all our [illegible] coquettish accessories the fan was bound to stage a come-back. Fans hand painted, bejeweled and even feather fans will enter the picture during the formal season. And who would deny their charm?

WHETHER ANY new arrangement of heart or jewel could be made for the arm was a question with us until we spied a bracelet of onyx, diamond and platinum that was patterned to resemble a rickrack braid. Yes, the very rickrack we used to wear on our gingham frocks. And it was a perfect [illegible] carrying out the popular black and white theme.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American, or the Boston Sunday Advertiser, or to Station WHDH.

Love—and Study of Nature

BEHOLD THE kitten, my Daughter. Observe her ways and be wise.

[illegible] HAND [illegible]

[illegible] that the male of the species rejoiceth in the chase and despiseth the easy [illegible] and that a man will forgive a woman for anything except for loving him TOO QUICKLY.

As a cat turneth from a bone that is flung at its head, so doth a man flee instinctively from a woman that flingeth herself at his feet or [illegible] upon his neck.

Verily, verily, in the conquest of man all the NATURE STUDY would profit the foolish damsel. And an understanding of the heart of a He-Man is more potent than a lipstick.

Ham Is a Standby for Cooler Weather

By MARTHA LEE.

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Homemakers' Club of Over 37,000

ON these [illegible] weather [illegible] Of course there is ham and ham, but for real [illegible] sugar cured, properly aged, well smoked ham is one of the world's best.

Martha Lee

For resistance to cool fall breezes you will find that a slight increase of meat in the diet will answer just as well for warmth producing results as a heavier weight underwear with the added benefit of keeping the body in better condition. Many doctors now advocate a change of diet rather than a change of underwear to insure a warm health body during the winter months.

Meat and vegetable combinations are especially appetizing as the days get cooler. Scalloped ham and potatoes are always a favorite. If you purchase a whole ham, have the retailer cut it into three sections, the shank to boil with cabbage, sauer kraut or other winter vegetables, the thick meaty center part to roast or slice and broil or scallop, and the butt end for baking with cider or brown sugar. You will be surprised at the economical variations you can ring in the meat budget with ham.

SCALLOPED HAM AND POTATOES

- 1 thick slice ham
- 4 cups sliced raw potatoes
- 1½ cups thin white sauce
- Salt and pepper

Cut a slice of ham one-half inch thick and flour lightly. Fry each side until it begins to brown, then put into a baking dish, cover with the white sauce and bake in a moderate oven 350 deg. F. for half an hour. Turn and bake another half-hour. Cut pared potatoes into medium thick slices, boil until almost tender and drain. Arrange in the casserole, lay the slice of ham on top, set in the oven and bake 25 minutes.

BOILED HAM WITH VEGETABLES

- 1 shank end ham
- 5 small potatoes
- 1 small head of cabbage cut in fifths
- 5 small onions
- 3 small turnips cut in quarters
- 3 medium-sized carrots, cut in quarters lengthwise

Plunge the ham in a pan of hot water and simmer one hour before adding the vegetables. At the end of the first hour's cooking, add the turnips, and when these have cooked 15 minutes add the potatoes and cabbage, cook 30 minutes longer; remove the vegetables carefully so as not to break in pieces and serve on a platter. Arrange with the ham in the center of the platter and surround with vegetables.

BAKED BUTT

Plunge a ham butt into kettle of boiling water. Boil vigorously for five minutes. Reduce heat and simmer for two hours. Remove rind, place ham in baking dish, sprinkle with brown sugar mixed with an equal quantity of bread crumbs. Dot over with cloves. Bake, fat side up, in a moderate oven 350 deg. F. for 70 minutes. Serve either hot or cold.

Best Health Needed in Teaching

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

OUR PUBLIC and private schools are in full swing. Mothers have planned the school clothes for the children, and the children are busy with their lessons.

Dr. Copeland

But what about the teachers? We hope they have had a long season of relaxation and rest. Some have been traveling and seeing something of the world. Others will have been in the mountains or the seashore. [illegible] they have returned to their important work with renewed vigor and good health.

One of the [illegible] for success in teaching is good health. Teaching is a strenuous job. The demands made upon our teachers are tremendous and exacting. Have you ever thought about their problems?

It seems to me that the teacher is in many respects the most important member of [illegible]. We trust our children to [illegible] not only for [illegible] educational matters [illegible] moral and [illegible] are in the teachers' hand.

Not only must the teacher have good health, but she must have certain intangible qualities of leadership, personality and common sense, as well as good mental, moral and social qualities. She must have infinite patience and tact.

This public servant must guard her own health [illegible] her province to teach her pupils how to be well and strong, she must give a good example.

Everybody needs relaxation and entertainment. Certainly the teacher is no exception to this rule. More and more men are taking up golf, and so are the women. But there are other out-of-door sports that take less time and energy than golf. To have some diversion of this sort keeps the spirit young and the heart gay, and it adds greatly to the store of health.

If the health is kept vigorous the hard work of teaching and discipline looks less formidable. Each day's work takes on added interest and real pleasure.

BOSTON'S LUCKY GIRL by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

All Smiles for Gordon, Cathie Given Warning by Atty. Allen

CHAPTER 41

CATHIE CAME into the room where he was waiting. The visitors' room where she had seen so many people in the last four days. She put out one hand and groped her way to him. Her frenzied powdering with the matron's puff hadn't done any good. The tears washed the powder away as fast as she put it on. In the end she gave up, and went to him just as she was, all crumpled and red-eyed and half blinded with tears. And never had his heart gone out to her as it did then in her disheveled despair.

"Gordon—I—I almost thought you weren't coming!"

"Cathie—oh, my dear, my dear!"

She saw that he was shocked at her appearance, and her lip trembled, she was going to cry again.

"Cathie, darling, I didn't know. I started on a fishing trip—not to catch any fish—just to get away. I couldn't bear losing you, and I did just the worst thing, the worst thing—"

She clung to him.

"It doesn't matter now. You're back. Oh, Gordon, I've wanted you so. I've waited and waited—"

"My dear . . . my poor little Cathie—"

Painful Waiting

"I knew you'd come. Only it was so hard, waiting."

"Cathie, what can I say? What can I do? I know so little —"

"Don't say anything. Just hold me in your arms, Gordon. I'm so tired. I just want you to love me. Then I don't care about anything else. Just love me — that's all — just — love me—"

She rested in his arms. It was the first time she had really rested in the four long heartbreaking days . . . .

People passed in the corridor turned to crane their necks and stare. A policeman. Two women crying softly, on their way to visit a young girl picked up on a bad-check passing charge. The matron. Another matron from another floor. But Cathie didn't see them, and Gordon didn't care.

"Cathie, I'm going to see the attorneys. We've got to get you out of this."

"I know."

"Cathie, have you told all you know?"

"Yes. They've asked me questions until I'm almost out of my mind. But I don't know anything."

Son Accused

"Cathie. Do you know what I think? Chester—"

"Chester? His own father!"

He set his mouth grimly. "Yes, it's terrible. But it's possible."

"But—a son—"

"Cathie, did you tell them about the fights Chester and Farnsworth had toward the end?"

"No."

"Good! I'm off for the attorneys."

"But you couldn't send Chester. . . . I mean you couldn't do that to him?"

"I couldn't?" He smiled bitterly. "After what he did to you?"

She threw out her hands helplessly. "I think he believes I did. Oh, don't look that way. I saw his face. I know he believes it."

"Ridiculous. But leave all that to me. We won't talk of that. I'll take care of you, Cathie . . . By the way, I had to take care of myself, too. I was a suspect too, did you know that?"

"Then they did mean it! They told me, but I didn't believe it. Oh, Gordon, tell me, I won't ever forgive myself for getting you into all this—never—never!" She was beginning to shake again.

"Oh, I'm all right. I met some fellows right after I left, and stayed with them until three. The perfect alibi. But what's this about Marguerite clearing out? I don't like that—that looks bad."

"I don't know, Gordon. She was asleep when I went to her room. She had nothing to do with it. She tried to help me."

"Yes, but why did she run out on the police?"

Cathie shook her head. "I don't know. She was always queer you know. Maybe she got frightened."

Found by Chinese

"There—I got off the track, and forgot to tell you about Cheong Cheong, the see-all, know-all, and say nothing! He knows every Chinaman in the state of Massachusetts. Regular underground railway system. Lord knows how they do it. Anyway the word was relayed along and this Chinaman walked into my camp about daybreak this morning. He had the whole file of clippings on the case. Pretty near floored me. I couldn't believe it.

"Well, we left my camping stuff where it stood, and beat it for the nearest town. I gave myself up and we came on with a police escort and sirens tooting, from Sacramento. Quite a ride!"

She smiled in sympathy, reached over and patted his dark head. To think he was still young enough to get a thrill out of a ride . . . She felt too old, herself . . . Cathie, who wasn't twenty . . .

She cried a little when he left, but she wasn't unhappy. Powdered her nose, asked for clothes, agreed to the matron's offer of tea.

But she thought Mrs. Evans looked more sorry for her than ever. Their tea wasn't very gay, though Cathie chatted and laughed, and was more like herself than she had been for days.

The cups were hardly drained when Mr. Allan came. "All I do is have company!" Cathie laughed, when the [illegible] came.

"Well, never get too busy to see your attorney, young lady!"

Mr. Allan got right to the point. "How brave do you feel?" he asked her abruptly. He looked fat and dyspeptic and bored with life.

Cathie paled a little. "I feel very brave," she said steadily. But her heart was crying . . . Oh, now something's happened . . . now when he's back, and I was feeling happy . . . if it only could have come before, when I wasn't caring . . .

Talks Too Much

"I don't mind telling you that you're in a fine hole," he said. "This boy friend of yours comes on the scene, and you all smiles and blushes won't help ONE BIT. She killed the old one, for the young one—do you see? I foresaw that. Tried to build up a history of abuse for you, tried to give you a decent motive. But you've ruined all that. Only this morning in your interview with the press you told how good Farnsworth was to you. Bah! What sympathy will they have for you? You've got to stop talking. I won't allow any more interviews, but the damage is all done."

She looked at him, not quite comprehending. She was still so happy. "Well, I didn't do it, and there's all there is to it. My word is as good as Chester's, isn't it?"

He looked at her grimly. "My dear young lady. They've got a witness downstairs. They're going to bring you down to be identified in a few minutes. Now come clean with me. Tell me the truth, or I'll have to drop the case. Confess and I'll save your freedom and my reputation. Hold out on me, and sure as I'm Jesse Partington Allan, the best you can hope for is life!"

Listen, World! The Right Conditions of Growth

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I WONDER if Professor John Dewey was laughing up his very wise sleeve when he named his new book "THE QUEST FOR CERTAINTY."

As questors for Certainty we Americans hold all records. Other peoples are content to accept life as it comes, a mess or a muddle, and make the best of it. But we are convinced that there's a Perfect Solution somewhere, if we look far enough.

Elsie Robinson

Certainty . . . a fool proof guaranteed formula for perfect happiness and success . . . we dream of it as little children dream of miraculous candy shops with inexhaustible jars of lollypops. Some day we'll find that formula. And when we find it, all our questions will be answered, all our problems will be solved, all our troubles will cease. Life will thenceforth be as simple as a game of tiddleywinks.

So before we're barely out of the cradle, we begin looking for Certainty. And some assure us that it can be found in a certain brand of Religion. And others advocate a new branch of politics . . . or psychology . . . or physical training. Even the ads tell us the Perfect Life. Buy a Certain Mouth Wash . . . or Chewing Gum . . . or Cigarette . . . or Collar . . . or Automobile Tire . . . and all your dreams will come true.

And this belief in the Perfect Panacea is no passing whimsy of the American mind. It is as deep rooted in the Puritan of colonial times of God. It is, indeed, our 20th century conception of God. No longer do we worship a Jehovah of blood 'n' thunder. Such tough stuff is out-of-date. Nowadays we want a nice, obliging God who knows his onions and will help us get success easy, as a gentleman should.

All of which, of course, is childish nonsense. THERE IS NO CERTAINTY. There is no program for the perfect life, there is no panacea for human ills. No one can tell you what is the right way to live. Nor will you ever, however hard you may strive, stumble upon any method which will wipe out your weakness and restlessness and fill you with joy and content.

For life is not arranged that way. Life is in its very nature a vague restless affair . . . always groping . . . always reaching down and building up . . . always going on . . . never satisfied, never certain. Life never arrives. Life never settles things.

And God, if there is a God—and I, for one, believe there is—is a Going Business, too, who needs all Infinity to house its magnificent unrest.

If you would like a full life, stop looking for a simple or certain one. Stop trying to put yourself and the world in order. Abandon yourself to the vast disorder of creation. Stop fretting because you're restless and bewildered and hungry and rebellious. Stop thinking that these are sick, unnatural conditions. Realize that they are THE RIGHT CONDITIONS OF GROWTH. REALIZE THAT THE ONLY GROWING LIFE IS THE UNCERTAIN LIFE.

Married People Today May Be of Bridal Party

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am about to be married and I wish my dearest girl friend to attend me, but she is married. Will it be ill luck for myself or my friend if she and her husband do attend us? EVELYN.

Nowadays, when the bride and groom choose their wedding attendants, they make no distinction between married friends and unmarried friends. Often all of the attendants are married. The attendants are chosen, or should be, because they are close and loved friends, and what possible difference should it make that they are married?

Too, if, for instance, the bride chooses as her matron of honor a close friend, it is not at all necessary that the groom choose the husband of that friend as his best man or as an usher. The same is true of the groom; if he chooses as his best man a married brother or a close friend who is married, it is not necessary for the bride to invite the wife of the best man to be her matron of honor or a bridesmaid. And the wife or husband of an attendant should not expect this invitation.

Announcing One's Self

DEAR MISS BEECKMAN:

If one is without calling cards, and enters a place of business where the announcement of her arrival is necessary, what is the correct form for repeating the name to the secretary's question, "What's the name, please?" Should the caller reply "Smith" or "Miss Smith"? READER.

Miss Smith.

The Formal Engagement Party

DEAR MISS BEECKMAN:

When giving an informal engagement party which is to be a catered affair, would it be incorrect for the engaged couple to wear formal evening clothes? I.

If the party is to be given in the evening, this form of dress would be the best of form. This is a charmingly formal occasion, and demands formal attire to do it honor.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.

East Calls for More Cars for Final Quarter

May Be Very Hopeful Sign; Public Demand Short Selling Probe

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Oct. 7—[illegible] traditionally start in the East and move Westward. Therefore it may be [illegible] that shippers in the [illegible] to be prepared to handle more traffic [illegible] quarter than [illegible] the final quarter of last [illegible] crease.

B. C. Forbes

Cotton, after dipping below ten cents, has also improved slightly. Among other commodities which sank to new low levels last week were [illegible] rubber [illegible] copper, tin and raw sugar.

Yet there has been modest [illegible] of fear. The feeling is spreading that selling on most exchanges—grain, metal, cotton, rubber, stock—has been overdone and that recovery would be more logical than reaction. It would not be astonishing were other markets to act as the wheat market has acted.

The stock market closed the week with [illegible] changes after having moved irregularly. For example, Monday and Tuesday witnessed a total decline of almost six points, Wednesday a rise of more than six points, Thursday a drop of two and a half points, Friday a recovery of equal amount, while first Saturday showed strength and weakness.

Such violent fluctuations from day to day clearly reflect professional operations rather than public buying and selling. That powerful bears are still periodically attacking values cannot be questioned.

Who are buying the stocks now being sold? Investigations made by the writer brought out that stocks are being quietly purchased by some of the wealthiest and most powerful individuals and institutions in America. They are not bidding prices up, but are content to step in whenever quotations are forced down.

Has not the time arrived for the governors of the New York Stock Exchange and of other important exchanges to check up the source of all recent short selling?

Public sentiment towards "gambling exchanges" is daily becoming more bitter. Gamblers are beginning to be blamed for continuance of unsettlement, unemployment, abnormally low prices for farm products, disrupted trade, curtailed consumption and [illegible] economical [illegible] people.

The writer constantly receives letters urging that [illegible] be passed prohibiting short selling. The truth is, of course, that to enact such legislation would be far more harmful than helpful—indeed, it would precipitate far-reaching [illegible] and ultimately [illegible]. But unless those charged with the responsibility of running our exchanges can convince the public that they are alive to the sentiment now steadily gaining momentum, unless they do something to mark their disapproval of vicious attempts to wreck values at this time when every possible constructive effort should be made, popular clamor may precipitate hasty political action.

The writer earnestly exhorts the governors of the New York Stock Exchange to take the lead in investigating the extent of short selling and in taking whatever steps may be found feasible to meet the present unpleasant situation.

This is not a time for pulling down. It is essentially a time for building up.

STATISTICAL BUREAUS FILL REAL NEED

By FRANK H. MELOON

Statistical bureaus today supply a real need for those who wait in stock market [illegible]. One [illegible] fact is that it is no longer possible [illegible] to compare [illegible] with those of [illegible] ago. This [illegible] among [illegible] also the [illegible] showing New York [illegible] have been [illegible] written about the [illegible] now [illegible].

There is still fair ground for supposing that a [illegible] with the [illegible] loads has [illegible] creased during 19[illegible] and the figures [illegible] that decreases in actual [illegible] of merchandise [illegible] have not [illegible] as large as popularly [illegible].

The safety margin as things have been [illegible] ing appears ample [illegible] continuance of the annual [illegible] rate of $4.

Because November eggs dropped yesterday to a new record low of 21½ cents a dozen does not mean eggs will be selling at that price in November. [illegible] doubtful if eggs from New England henneries will be obtainable in November anywhere near that figure. Chicago dispatches [illegible] the level of 21½ cents was the lowest ever reached [illegible] many [illegible] when eggs could be had [illegible] 12 cents a dozen [illegible] that was before the days of [illegible].

N. Y. Central "Trust Selling"

Liquidation in New York Central was attributed to selling by an investment trust. This liquidation, it was stated, was necessitated by the recent reaction in the general market which has impaired the position of the "trust" to some extent. Steel operations have shown [illegible] improvement [illegible] disappointing. This buying, however, is not aggressive and there is little [illegible] on the part of those buying Steel to follow [illegible].

Meyer Called One of Ablest Reserve Heads

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Washington, Oct. 7—The second ary and mature reaction to Eugene Meyer's appointment to the governorship of the Federal Reserve Board [illegible] distinctly more favorable.

M. S. Rukeyser

Even men [illegible] of the farm bloc who were originally scheduled to oppose confirmation in the Senate are privately admitting their reluctance to do so. In this period of critical economic readjustment there is an instinctive groping for [illegible] ness in public office, and there is a growing belief that Mr. Meyer is likely to prove the ablest board governor since the system was established 16 years ago.

Bernard M. Baruch, former chairman of the war industries board, once remarked that Mr. Meyer could run down the street with the speed of a panther and stop instantly if he saw a fact. Mr. Meyer regards his new post essentially as an administrative one, and is not eager to use it as a laboratory for settling controversial economic questions. He views the problem of credit administration from the viewpoint of the practical needs of business and agriculture.

Since Mr. Meyer succeeded Gov. Young there has been no indication of any significant change in reserve policy. The board at present seems disposed to put some backbone into member bankers, especially in regard to the outlook for [illegible] staples and to induce them to have the courage to avoid [illegible] their customers at the [illegible]. To speak plainly, some of the banks in agricultural regions have loans outstanding on staples which exceed the current market [illegible] of such commodities. Some [illegible] feel that the banks already have these [illegible] that they ought realistically to consider the possibilities of [illegible] recovery. Apparently the [illegible] are to be encouraged to wait market development rather than close out such loans at prevailing low commodity prices.

[illegible] an influential element [illegible] Federal Reserve Board [illegible] the banks of the country [illegible] commodities [illegible] prevail [illegible].

"We recognize that if business gets distinctly better that the price of money, in response to the growing demand, will have to go up. That seems obvious enough.

The cheapness of money is not artificial. Money is cheap in Europe where there is no Federal Reserve system. Under comparable economic conditions in 1908, money was cheap in the United States before we had a Federal Reserve system."

[illegible] improvement in such trades as shoes and cotton goods represents an attempt to reflect consumption in manufacturing schedules. Heretofore those trades reflected consumption as modified by [illegible] on the part of distributors [illegible].

WAR ON 'BEAR RAIDERS' IS DECLARED

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—[illegible] New York Stock Exchange has declared war on the bear [illegible] which has carried on a [illegible] of selling [illegible] past week.

The declaration of war [illegible] form of a warning [illegible] disciplinary action [illegible] existing in the [illegible] the purpose of [illegible] condition of [illegible] which [illegible] market values.

BROKERS QUESTIONED

The purpose of the [illegible] put an end [illegible] campaigns [illegible] stock [illegible] effect [illegible] Wall Street [illegible] would be to [illegible] change [illegible] concerned with [illegible].

As the first step in the campaign the conduct committee [illegible] several brokers before it and questioned them at length regarding recent operation.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

WALL STREET HAS RALLY AFTER FRESH DROPS

New York, Oct. 7—Another outburst of selling in the utility stocks and specialties, which carried prices down 1 to 5 points, unsettled the stock market today and blocked the way to an effective rally.

Even with the disciplinary action of the stock exchange against the bears, it was impossible to hold the pivotal stocks in line and the lowest prices on the movement were recorded for practically all of the favorites.

The closing hour saw a vigorous rally.

SOME RECOVERIES.

Leading shares were marked down close to the panic levels of last November in earlier trading. Large-scale liquidation swept into the market after a short-lived rally in the first hour. Stocks were absorbed in orderly manner, but bull leadership failed to appear, as selling orders for both long and short accounts kept the list under stubborn pressure until well into the afternoon, when trading slackened and recoveries of a point or so appeared here and here.

Few shares lost more than 3 points, although Peoples Gas, a volatile issue, dropped 17. Allied Chemical, which lost 18 yesterday, rallied 7 points, then dropped 12 from the top. American Telephone sold off nearly 3 to 198, a new 1930 low, only one point above the bottom of last November.

U. S. Steel dropped more than 2 to a new 1930 low at 151¼, only 1¼ above the November minimum. General Electric and Radio each fell more than 2 points to record lows for the present shares.

Eastman, American & Foreign Power, American Power & Light and Macy declined 3 to more than 4.

Disclosure that stock exchange officials had questioned some members about bearish operations appeared to have been the basis for the opening rally.

Wall Street was inclined, however to interpret the action as indicating merely a determination to make the Bears play fair, rather than any indication that the exchange might consider placing restraints on short selling, which it has always defended as an essential factor in a free market.

It was said in brokerage circles that the exchange was concerned over such unethical practices as making use of knowledge of stop loss orders on specialists books as the basis of bear drives, or the spreading of malicious or destructive propaganda. It was recalled that the investigation of the short interest last November marked a turning point in the trend of the market, but failed to disclose any concerted Bear drive.

On the whole, the persistence of the selling was somewhat perplexing to brokerage circles.

Although many of the so-called pivotal shares have held above last November's lows, the general level of stocks has broken well below that level, as was shown by a tabulation of 687 stocks made by a commission house, which revealed the average price the lowest in two years.

In the early trading, a few large orders indicated that some efforts were being made to support the market, but the list soon gave way. So far as could be learned, important banking interests were unconcerned over the liquidation.

DISCOURAGED SELLING

Brokers felt that much of the selling was of a discouraged variety, since repeated efforts to rally the list have failed during the past six months. Further investment buying was reported, but only on scale down.

The day's news failed to account for the action of the market. News from Brazil continued to be disturbing, and transactions in Brazilian exchange were at a standstill.

Nevertheless, bankers did not believe the Brazilian situation would normally have any marked reflection in this stock market.

Trade reports indicated that retail sales were in better volume since the cooler weather set in, and wholesale merchants said they were receiving numerous re-fill orders.

Early estimates of this week's steel mill operations, however, still indicated that there may be a slight slowing up this week. Call money held at 2 per cent.

Grains Are Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, Oct. 7—A drop of 4 to 4½c in rye featured closing trade in grains today. Wheat finished 2⅛ to 2⅝c lower, corn 1⅛ to 1½c off and oats 1⅜c down.

The break in rye resulted from heavy selling on weakness in Winnipeg. Rye prices at the latter market were as much as 5c lower during the session.

Oil Production in U. S. Lower

New York, Oct. 7—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States for the week ended Oct. 4 totaled 2,378,645 barrels, a decrease of 3572 barrels, according to Oil & Gas Journal. Light oil output increased 4676 barrels daily.

FOUR PER CENT.

G. J., Boston—I own several stocks and bonds bought on your advice. Now I want your opinion of a purchase of Woolworth.

Ans.—F. W. Woolworth is selling at a level to yield 4 per cent from the current $2.40 dividend. The company is the world's largest chain store enterprise and dividends in varying amounts have been paid from 1921. In 1929 earnings were $3.66 a share, compared with $3.63 in 1928 and $3.62 in 1927. Sales for eight months ended August 30 amounted to $174,113,198, compared with $182,777,973 for similar period of 1929, a decrease of 4.7 per cent. According to official statement sales for the final four months should make up quite a bit of the loss.

W. T. Grant Sales Show 10 P.C. Increase

W. T. Grant & Co. report sales for September amounted to $5,268,353, which represents an increase of 10.6 per cent over the $4,776,755 reported in the same month of last year.

Sales for the first nine months of this year were $45,493,453. This is an increase of 10.3 per cent over the sales in the corresponding period of 1929, which were $41,237,620.

OUTLOOK FOR INDUSTRIES IS STUDIED

The prospects for the principal industries of the country are grouped by the Standard Statistics Co. of New York, in a current survey, according to the following list:

Most Promising—Chain stores, cigarettes, dairy products, electric light and power, electrical equipment, package foods, shipbuilding, telephone and telegraph.

Good—Beverages, cement, chemicals, machinery, motion pictures, refrigeration, specialty bakeries.

Uncertain—Canned foods, meat packing, radio.

Fair—Agricultural machinery, automobiles, automobile parts, bread bakeries, building, cigars, department stores, fertilizers, flour and feed, mail order, office equipment, paper, petroleum, railroads, railroad equipment, shoes, steel, sugar refining.

Poor—Aircraft, apparel, automobile tires, coal, copper, cotton goods, electrical household supplies, floor coverings, furniture, lead, leather, lumber, rayon, shipping, silk goods, sugar producing, traction, woolen goods, zinc.

BUYING SEEN BY SPECTATOR

By SPECTATOR.

Because of the discouraging tardiness of the business recovery, not much support has yet been accorded the theory of "scale buying" of high grade stocks by small investors. Bankers and investment trusts are said to be accumulating stocks.

In Common Stocks

One important investment service which had previously advised its clients to place no more than 50 per cent of total resources in common stocks, declares that the present position of the market warrants an increase in this figure to 70 or 75 per cent, if there is an opportunity to obtain such issues as the following at sizeable concessions from current levels: American Tobacco B, American Can, American Tel. & Tel., General Electric, Consolidated Gas, Sears Roebuck, General Foods, National Dairy Products, Public Service of New Jersey, Union Carbide, United Gas Improvement, Woolworth, Atchison, Chesapeake & Ohio and Union Pacific.

Weakening of Steel

A 50-cent reduction in steel scrap prices has virtually cancelled all of the recent improvement in this direction. Weakening of steel prices will undoubtedly find unfavorable reflection in earnings, particularly with operations showing little or no improvement. The prices structure is declared to be the real determining factor in the outlook for steel companies and their shares.

Drug Corporation Increasing Stock

Chicago, Oct. 7—A special meeting of stockholders of the Abbott Laboratories, Inc., has been called for Oct. 21 to vote on a proposal to increase the capital stock to 200,000 shares from 150,000 and to vote on a proposed increase in the directorate to 11 members from 9.

Parade Description and Entertainment on Air From 11 A. M. to 7 P. M.

Beginning at 11:00 a. m. and continuing through until 7:00 p. m. today, the American Legion convention holds complete sway over the WLEX microphones today. The description of the American Legion parade, which began an hour before noon, will be heard over the WLEX microphones until dusk, and almost immediately afterward, controls switch to the Boston Evening American studios of the station for another Legion program of speakers and entertainment.

At the helm this afternoon are Arthur S. Roberts and Newcomb F. Thompson, the American announcers, who report the parade from the reviewing stand on Tremont st. The men claim that by nightfall they will have established a radio record for a sustained broadcast of a single event by two men.

The evening program, which starts at 6:15 consists of talks and entertainment. Included among the speakers are Mrs. Frank C. Nesbit, demi-chapeau of the Huit Chapeaux et Quarante Femmes (Eight Hats and Forty Women). Others present include the Arkansas Smile Girls, 36 ladies who form a singing band. WLEX officials promise a number of last minute surprises for this program tonight.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

It has become quite evident to us, who are to a considerable extent associated with matters of the radio world, that there are now many thousands of radio fans who have lost some of their interest in regulation broadcast programs and are turning to short waves for a new thrill. Any one with even the slightest desire to receive signals from distant points will not fail to get satisfaction from twisting the dial of a low wave receiver.

Numerous broadcasters throughout the country are operating short wave stations and it is comparatively easy for the adroit listener to log all of them. Nor need he confine his activities to this country. In Europe and South America they are broadcasting programs on short waves and on regular schedule.

The best part of short wave receivers is that elaborate aerials are not required. A short indoor aerial, in some cases not over 10 feet in length, will suffice to pull in European broadcasters. And short waves as a field for future development provides an ideal browsing place for the serious-minded experimenter. Thirty times the number of stations possible on the basis of a 10-kilocycle separation in the present broadcasting band could operate on wavelengths between five and 10 meters without intereference.

So great are the possibilities of short waves that it is predicted most of the future development of radio will be at wavelengths of 100 meters.

OH-HUM! I SPOKE FOUR WORDS TODAY!

Up on the 23d floor of the Columbia System building is a small room which might well be called a prison cell studio. In this room, which is 10 feet square, with one window, two announcers spend all of their working hours at a control desk. The announcer may not read, nor may he receive visitors or telephone calls. For eight hours he sits before a condenser microphone and listens to the incoming programs. His one and only duty is to throw a switch on the panel when the network announcer says, "This is the Columbia Broadcasting System," then wait five seconds before he intones, "This is WABC, New York." Folowing this announcement he waits one second, throws another switch and says, "This is W2XE, New York," and then sets his switches in their original position.

What a life!

Over in London, the bobbies may soon by carrying miniature radio receivers to keep in direct contact with headquarters. The receiver will fit into a pocket. A buzzer will sound to warn each policeman when he is called.

One official has remarked that within the next few months all police forces will have their own broadcasting stations and every policeman will be in constant touch with headquarters through the tiny set which he will carry.

Broun Volunteers Carrying On

The Broun Volunteers, or the Broun Rescue Party, as that dauntless human chain of journalists, authors and columnists have been called, will continue their work of subbing for "Hey" while he is out making hay while the sun shine. Broun's nightly 11:15 C. B. S. Radio Column required too much labor and was interfering with his Congress campaign, so his fellowmen have come to his aid. During the past week we heard through WNAC interesting talks by John Erskine, Alexander Woollcott, Frank Sullivan and Beverly Smith. Now, for four more weeks listeners will hear such men as J. P. McEvoy, H. I. Phillips, Elmer Davis, Frank Sullivan and John Erskine again, Stanley Walker and Russell Crouse.

A gentle reminder that the American Legion is in town will be offered by the Cleercoalers when they dedicate their program to that group on their weekly WNAC program, heard at 7:30 tonight. Tunes the boys sang and played will be recalled by the orchestra and Andrew Jacobson, featured sax-soloist, will present "Dear Old Pal of Mine."

RADIO Personalities

Like the gob who goes rowing on his day off, so are the firemen in and around New York. Hordes of them flock to the CBS studios to hear the Fire-Fighters' program on Saturdays. . . When NORMAN BROKESHIRE introduces ANNETTE HANSHAW to the radio audience on the Van Heusen program, he turns around and, taking Miss Hanshaw by the arms, gently lifts the blues singer to her place before the mike. . . R. L. RIPLEY sold his first drawing to a magazine for $8, then tried out for a berth with the N. Y. Giants, because he thought drawing wasn't remunerative enough. But while with the team he broke his arm and had to turn back to art. It was a "lucky break," for today he makes more than the biggest priced baseball star. . . DR. FRANK H. VIZETELLY, editor of the New Standard Dictionary, will soon be heard over a CBS chain. He reads every page of the dictionary six times before it goes to press. Is said to have a vocabulary greater than any other man, living or dead.

like nobody's business."

"Okay!"

In Front Door

"And you eight guys—I want you to walk right in the front door. There won't be more than three or four cops in there. Stick up the desk sergeant—you two cover the captain's office—and you jam that door that leads to the dicks' room."

The eight nodded.

"Now Ray," he said, turning to his chauffeur, "you come with me. And you, Cranky. Got that sledge hammer? Yeah? Okay. One sock's got to bust that door. It's old and the lock's weak and it swings in. Ray, back that car just into the alley and have it turnin' north. I want this thing to come off at exactly 12:30. When you hear the siren on my car—beat it, you six straight north—you eight turn at Eighth at an' into the park. I'll go left a block west, but you guys keep goin'. Meet me at Silver Lake. Keep goin' till nobody's followin' you. Shoot it out if you can't shake 'em. Try speed first and lead last."

He paused and motioned to Ray, who went to a box and dragged out six bottles of rye.

"Come on—take a good stiff jolt—but no more after that."

Goldie turned away as the men passed the bottles around. Goldie did not drink liquor. He never did.

He had worked his desperate plan out in every detail, one of the most daring, unheard-of raids in the history of local crime.

True, three desperate men—the notorious Car Barn bandits—prepared in Chicago one day to stick up the outlying Sheffield ave. police station the next night and spring their pal, Gus Marx. But they never carried through their plans because Marx confessed before they came, preaching on all of them into the bargain. That was as near as any purpose had ever come to the wild raid of the gold-inned gangster.

"All set?" asked Goldie as the empty bottles, one by one, were tossed aside. A series of affirmative grunts answered him. It was twelve o'clock.

"Now, take your time about gettin' out of here," warned Goldie. "Pick up your cars wherever you got them stanched. We start work at 12:30 sharp. Everybody in his place and on his job. Let's go!"

With Ray and the giant Cranky, Goldie walked out of the room. The others left in twos and threes.

"Ray, are you sure all them license plates was well dusted?" Goldie asked as he got into his car.

"Everyone—I looked 'em over, boss," assured the chauffeur.

Goldie settled back in his "business" car, a gray sedan. Cranky got in beside Ray, nursing his huge sledge-hammer between his knees. Goldie looked at his wrist-watch.

Off to Annie

"Take a turn around the drive for a little air, Ray," he ordered. The chauffeur nodded. The clutch slid in gently and the car got away like a panther. Goldie lit up and crossed his legs.

Goldie calmly puffed his cigarette, methodically removing it and returning it to his lips with a nerveless hand. He might have been on his way to visit distant cousins, so indifferent was his attitude.

The car moved along swiftly and noiselessly over the velvet boulevards. Goldie's watch ticked away the minutes, and now and then as they passed an arc light, he raised his arm and looked at it."

"Okay, Ray—turn her downtown."

With both hands he patted the two automatics which he had strapped under his arm-pits. An inscrutable smile rose over his face. Then his lips closed tight and grim. He uncrossed his legs and leaned a bit forward in his seat as the car sped toward Central Detail—and Polack Annie.

THE PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

For the first time in the history of the harbor, a ship has been converted into a "floating hotel" for the American Legion convention.

The Governor Dingley of the Eastern line is tied up at Foster wharf, and is the temporary home of 340 Legionnaires. There are about a dozen wives in the party.

In the delegations are representatives from Newport News, Va.; Ocean City, N. J.; Pittston, Pa., and some from Washington, D. C. The Dingley is used as sleeping quarters and the delegates eat elsewhere.

GREETINGS AND AFFECTION, LEGIONNAIRES!

All America Joins in Today's Celebration of Your Spirit and Achievements

HAIL, LEGION!

Better than all—80,000 fine minds.

As you see them march, happy for the moment, carefree for the moment, the surge of patriotism and affection swells in the breasts of all Americans.

Mind's eye turns back the pages. THEN, it was not the blue serge and the yellow-banded cockade; it was the trench helmet and the brown khaki FOR SERVICE; FOR COME WHAT MAY!

Then it was not the hilarious cheering; it was the prayer of hope and the benedictions of the mothers, the wives, the children and the other loved ones.

They went away grim-lipped, and dauntless. Chateau Thierry, the Hindenburg line, mine-swept seas and the Flanders fields, all these with their horrors and their glories, are the vivid, the imperishable memory of the yesterday.

They responded to the most idealistic call for service that history has known.

That the world is not yet safe for democracy, that puppet kings, autocratic dictators and hysterical mobs yet rule over there where the peaceful pursuits of democracy's reign should have been crowned, is to the eternal discredit of the statesmen who wrote the "peace," not of these fine American lads whose valor in war made peace possible.

They turned the most disastrous war of all time from defeat to victory for their associates.

They claimed no booty, no mandates, no trade routes nor the spoils of territory and money.

They brought the American flag back home, unsullied by the avaricious spirit of material conquest.

Is it any wonder that America pulsates with joy and glory at the sight of these men who bared their breasts out of patriotic love of their country for the democratic ideal of justice without lust or the vandalism which had tainted the history of all previous wars on the European Continent!

They are today, as they were yesterday, the richest among us in patriotism. Because theirs is the patriotism of service on the field of battle; theirs is the experience of rushing to the colors of their country when their country cried out for them.

They have made the sacrifices, paid the severest penalties and achieved the greatest glory for their country of all the men of our generation.

They have come to adult life ripe and rich in the practical lessons of patriotism and it is to them the country must turn for guidance in its domestic and international problems of the future.

Having had the experience of the trench, the submarine, the pursuit plane and the destroyer at the vantage points of danger, not in the safe sanctuary of the placid statesmen, we can expect from them the sensible policy of an independent and impregnable America, not the schemes and wiles of inane diplomacy, which is today, and always, the only menace to the safety of the country they love.

To those who are here and to the memory of those whose resting places are marked by the little white crosses, we say:

Greetings and Affection.

He Helps Who Spends

Hoarding Harmful at Time When Confidence Is Needed

You have heard much, and useful, talk, about wise THRIFT.

Now read a few words about WISE SPENDING.

Mr. McCay's cartoon on this page shows the dollar of 1930 compared with the dollar of 1929. The dollar of 1930 is a BIGGER dollar, because it is a MORE POWERFUL BUYING dollar.

It will buy almost twice as much as the dollar of 1929 could buy.

Use it wisely, for your own good, and for the good of general conditions, spending judiciously, while the dollar's buying ability is at its maximum.

Foolish or reckless SPENDING, at any time, is unwise and harmful.

Foolish, timid HOARDING, at a time when general confidence is needed, is doubly harmful.

A dollar saved is often of much less value than a dollar wisely spent, as witness those that have invested profitably, wisely spending, instead of merely hoarding.

Money rises and falls in value, and, with it, the buying power of the dollar increases and diminishes.

It depends on the things that you want, from raw materials to manufactured goods.

Those things at present are all low in price, and the dollar's power is greater than it has been for years, greater, perhaps, than it will be again for many years to come.

Consider what things you need, investigate present costs, and BUY.

ONE hundred dollars, wisely spent, for clothing that will last, for furniture that will endure throughout a lifetime, or in any one of a hundred ways, will do as much as TWO hundred dollars would have done a year ago.

There will always be time for wise economy and saving. This is the time for wise, intelligent and careful spending.

Curley's Street "Dream"

It Merits Boston's Ardent Support

For those who attack Mayor Curley's $25,000,000 street development plan as fantastical, chimerical and impossible of achievement we have utterly no patience.

Impossible, indeed?

"It can't be done," has been the wail of the reactionaries and unimaginative from the dawn of the first day.

The first locomotive was "chimerical." At the outlandish speed of twelve miles an hour it would play havoc with the country and slaughter all the people.

The airship was "fantastical." The Wright Brothers were loco.

The telephone and the telegraph were the "works of the devil." Bell and Farmer and Morse, examples of sorcery and witchcraft, should have been burned at the stake.

Folks tapped their foreheads significantly and pointed at Columbus with scorn when he set out on his memorable adventure. He was a "visionary" and "dreamer," they said.

Well, let us have some of this "dreaming." Where would we have been without it!

Instead of standing off and pelting rocks at Mayor Curley's plan, let's all get together and put it across. Modern Boston needs it, if traffic congestion ever is to be eliminated and if the city is to maintain its rank in the forefront of American municipalities. Modern Boston does not need the "it can't be done's."

Forget Grouch This Week

Legion Here for Good Time—Give It to Them

Just a word of friendly counsel.

We have thousands upon thousands of strangers within the gates this week.

There'll be jostling and jouncing and bustling and scrambling.

Forget it.

No grouching goes this week.

If someone steps on your corns, pokes you in the ribs or tells you to "Snap out of it, buddy," give him the best smile you've got.

The boys are here for a good time.

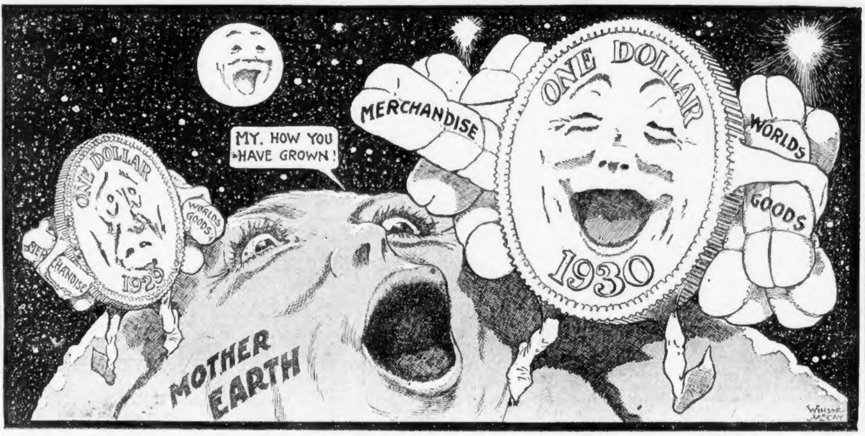
"It's always fair weather when good fellows get together."

USE THAT DOLLAR NOW



Here are dollars of 1929 and 1930 styles compared. While your dollar is big and powerful USE IT. It may ↑ shrink again. It will serve you well now. Put it to work. SPEND IT. [See editorial.]

New York Day by Day -:- O. O. McIntyre

REMINISCENCES OF THE LATE WILL C. HOGG

He Never Could Resist a Hard Luck Story

NEW YORK, Oct. 7—Although they say time softens such a blow, any effort to comment upon the recent passing of Will C. Hogg in Baden-Baden, Germany, brings a fierce choke. One of my dearest friends, he was the most impulsively noble and steadfastly loyal gentleman I ever encountered. No person could be more widely beloved.

I loved him as few could love their favorite brother. For 12 years our lives have been almost constant companionship. About 10 years older, he was my guide, my counsellor, my friend. His mind, his vitality, his varied resourcefulness were magnificent. He had a lightning temper. His sweetness was childlike. He was a man!

Just three months ago, after knocking around Europe all summer together, we exchanged rowdy farewells in Berlin. "So long, you big stiff!" I called out the Bremen boat train window. He glanced about quickly, thumbing his nose slyly, turned and was swallowed up by station crowds as the train thundered away.

Then the other week came that distressing cable from his sister: "Brother has undergone an emergency operation." There were three days of waiting anguish and came from the patient himself, a typical cable: "Don't speak of my unemployment." And while our hopes ran high, the thunderclap news of the end.

He was superlatively civic conscious and spent largely of his vast wealth in beautifying his native Houston, but always from an obscure anonymity. Until several years ago there was not a newspaper in the Texas city in which he was deservedly known as "the first citizen" that had his picture in its filing room. Due to my personal manner of writing it was next to impossible not to mention him in my trivialities, but it always vexed him. Often in a flush of anger he would exclaim: "If you run my name in your blankety-blank column again I'm going to slap you down." And I trust he forgives this attempt at eulogy.

* * *

The son of an illustrious sire, Governor James Hogg, he had that fixation for right so frequently characteristic of sons of great men. Outwardly gruff and at time poetically profane, inwardly there was no phase of altruism he did not possess. The rascals remain, but the worthy go on. It is all inscrutable.

* * *

No person I ever knew was such a human anomaly as Will Hogg. He was at once the cosmopolite and the backwoods Jasper. He was an art collector of distinction, his collection of Remingtons being the largest in the world, his knowledge of period furniture profound. He divided time among his Park ave. home, Old Word capitals and his beautiful estate, "Bayou Banks," in Houston. Yet I have seen him hunched over a steaming bowl of chili in a sawdust joint eating with the gusto of a starving tramp. He would endure tortures of jerkwater railroads to see a county fair. He carried cooks from Texas all over the world to have a daily supply of corn pone for himself and friends. Always his friends—he lived solely for them and his brothers and sister.

Two of his very closest intimates were Irvin Cobb and Ed J. Nolan, a Los Angeles banker. There is no one outside his immediate family for whom Cobb bears such affection as he does for "Bilog"—as he signed himself. Cobb hurried home from a shooting trip in North Carolina upon hearing the news—a tragic, stricken and inarticulate humorist whose despairing grief is born of the same selfishness as Nolan's and my own. The world can never be the same place for any one of us with Will Hogg not here.

Will Hogg could not resist a hard luck story, no matter how unworthy. I saw him touched for ten sizable sums in a two-block walk in Hollywood. As a result of such constant attacks his life became one of isolation. For a year before his passing he roamed between Berlin and Paris, often stopping at second-rate hotels "to duck the panhandlers."

* * *

He met strangers awkwardly and inherent shyness was often mistaken for rudeness. If strangers came into a room he made a precipitous and ungracious exit. His modesty is illustrated by this. Spending Christmas holidays with him in Houston one year, he mentioned he was going down to his little ranch in old Mexico. "Just a patch," he said, "with a sick cow and a sour well." I trailed along. The acreage of this "patch" was twice that of Manhattan Island, stocked with thousands of cattle and a Spanish castle that would surprise the dwellers in Beverly Hills.

* * *

None of us on earth may fathom this phenomenon harshly called Death. Yet I am utterly naive enough to believe that only the physical aspects of the Will Hogg we loved vanished. Some day I hope to hear him shout: "Hello, Splinters, how in hell did you get up here?"

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

Why Number of Males and Females Differ

THE DIVISIONS of the race into two equal battalions, one solidly male, the other solidly female, seems at first sight fundamental and inevitable. But the distinction can be set at naught not only by the slipping of a chromosome cog but by a slight defect in timing.

H. G. Wells

Alter one speed and you throw the whole harmony out of gear.

Various rather similar phenomena have been observed in mam - domesticated pigs and goats.

That the existence of these sex intermediates is determined by heredity is shown by some strange facts which Mr. J. R. Baker has brought back from the New Hebrides.

In the northern island of this Melanesian archipelago, intersexual pigs are extremely abundant, making up perhaps 10 or 20 per cent of the whole male porcine population.

They are called by a special name (rawe or ndre) and are employed in religious and social ceremonies.

In our own species quite parallel phenomena may occur.

Thus, beneath the calm, orderly development of the individual there is war in the nuclei, and in all of us, male or female, the rival forces are present, one outnumbered by the other.

In rare cases the battle nearly results in a draw, and that draw marks itself in indeterminate structure. And even when there is a definite win the defeated side may regain a little ground. Various things may go wrong.

The chromosomes may not be quite correctly balanced, or they may get to work at slightly different rates, or there may be influences disturbing the ductless glands.

There are feminine men and masculine women, in body and in mind.

The interplay of internal secretions in our bodies is extraordinarily complicated; thus, if the outer peel of the adrenal gland is too active in a woman it may deepen her voice and give her masculine tastes and instincts; too much pituitary may give her abnormally large hands and feet; a deficient pituitary may prevent sexual maturing and keep an individual of either sex permanently infantile, and so on.

The reader, we may remark here, must not confuse these genuine intersex cases, in which structure and function are truly intermediate, with the alleged cases of which he may find accounts in pseudo-psychological works, of perfect men with women's souls and instincts and perfect women with men's.

Bearing a vessel on his shoulder; and
He bid me taste of it; and 'twas—the grape!"
